Peace, When?
What About Girls?
Ford Warns Big Business
Students Must Fly

—By Arthur Brisbane—

WHEN, if ever, in this century, will the world be at peace again? Wherever you look, there is trouble, or trouble threatening.

THE CHINESE seek by threats, mobs and riots to drive out Europeans that dominate their ports.

They won't succeed until China changes her character. And even if they expel the Europeans, they will not get rid of little Japan.

Japan will cling to the flanks of great China, as the thresher shark clings to a gigantic right whale.

NORTH AFRICA, led by an able, courageous fighter, Abd-El-Krim, is in rebellion against France and Spain. Europeans and Americans talked much about the rights of little people ,and "self-determination." Now the so-called "inferior races" are taking the talk seriously.

It is said that European soldiers, Germans included, are helping the Riffs against France, and that Turkey is financing her brother Mohammedans of North Africa.

THOSE MOHAMMEDANS won't succeed. They are too far back in the scientific procession. Already, it is said, a French flier has "got" Abd-El-Krim. They will get him eventually, if they haven't got him this time.

Men crawling on the ground cannot compete with fighters in the air, no matter how brave the crawlers may be.

IN SOUTH AMERICA, some of our good neighbors have troubles and disputes. And even on the North American continent, which should be the peaceful home of all the European races, there is unpleasant discussion between the United States and Mexico.

THAT WILL PASS, however. This country likes the Mexicans; realizes the difficult problems that confront them. We are glad to have them for neighbors on the South, as we are glad to have the driving, thriving, ambitious Canadians on the North.

Because "it takes two to make a fight" there will be no quarrel between Uncle Sam and either of his nearest neighbors.

WHY CANNOT nations live side by side in friendship and courtesy, as civilized individuals live in their communities?

Hasn't the recent conflict taught the world that modern war NEVER pays, but ruins the conqueror and the conquered?

DOROTHY PERKINS, seventeen years old, shot one of the many men she knew—too well—and is now convicted of manslaughter in the first degree. Ten to twenty years in the penitentiary is the punishment.

The judge said, when the young woman had recovered from her fainting spell:

"I thank you, gentlemen, for your verdict. This may stop women from shooting men."

To the judge's pious hope, mothers of poor girls, and of some other girls, will add this hope:

"May some jury bring in a verdict that may stop men from betraying and abusing young girls."

PROTECT PROUD man, first of all, by all means, for he is the lord of creation. But this is certain: the first man that knew Dorothy Perkins and threw her aside deserves all that she deserves and a great deal more.

HENRY FORD asks big business interesting questions in connection with a recent decision that seems to pull most of the teeth out of the Sherman anti-trust law.

"Are we business men," asks Ford, "to be only as wise in our service as the law compels us to be?"

Ford warns his fellow industrialists that if they decide to go as far as the law allows, "the next law will be ten times stronger, and not quite so easy to nullify."

Urging business men to realize that best results come from giving good quality, at reasonable prices, and paying high wages, which mean general prosperity, Ford warns "big business" that President Coolidge will check the Sherman law violations and extortionate combinations.

OTHERS THAT KNOW the President, as Mr. Ford knows him, believe that when it becomes necessary the President will take action that will startle certain big business men whose mistaken motto is "the administration is ours, and the fullness thereof."

BLUE CREWS' DEEPER STROKE WITH 8 OARS VANQUISHES CRIMSON

Regatta Course, New London, Ct., June 19 (A.P.).—Yale's eight-oared crews swept the Thames River in the morning events of the annual crew classic with Harvard.

The Blue freshmen led the Crimson home over a two-mile course by three lengths and the junior varsity of Yale ran away from Harvard's second crew, finishing four length in front.

In each race the Crimson got away well and fought fiercely for the first mile, but Yale possessed the power and reserve to win.

The Harfard freshmen, stroked by J. Watts of Morristown, N. J., looked like a winner at the start from Bartlett's Cove. The crew caught the

FIVE OVERSEERS ARE CHOSEN BY HARVARD

The Phi Beta Kappa exercises occupied the centre of the stage at Harvard today, taking place at 11:30 in Sanders Theatre, following election of officers in Emerson D.

Marching to the theatre, members of the society listened to an original poem entitled: "Nocturne in a Library," by Arthur Davison Ficke '04, and an oration by John Houston Finley of the New York Times.

Professor E. K. Rand was re-elected president, R. B. Merriman was elected vice-president, W. G. Howard was re-elected secretary and Seth T. Gano treasurer.

MRS. J. P. MORGAN 'DECIDEDLY' BETTER

Glen Cove, N. Y., June 29 (A.P.).—The condition of Mrs. J. P. Morgan, wife of the financier, who is ill of sleeping sickness at her Summer home here, was reported by her physicians today as decidedly improved. The alarming conditions which appeared earlier in her illness apparently are subsiding, it was added, and the family feels greatly encouraged.

NEW HOLLIS DEATH CLUE LEADS TO N. Y.

Sergeant Thomas Harvey of the Lagrange street station left for New York today, following a conference with police officials in connection with the murder of Mrs. Mae Price, theatrical wardrobe mistress, in the Hotel Hollis, May 29.

District Attorney O'Brien participated in the conference with Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley, Captain Goodwin and Sergeant Harvey, at which information received by the police was discussed.

It was decided to continue the investigation and search for an escaped Federal prisoner, whose fingerprints were expected to arrive from the West today. Sergeant Harvey also will interview a man who is expected to furnish information regarding the suspect.

Meantime the police were awaiting the arrival of Miss May Jensen, vaudeville actress, to attempt to identify a photograph of the escaped convict as that of a man who accosted her in the Hotel Hollis the night of the murder.

"I was passing through the hall way on the sixth floor," said Miss Jensen in relating the encounter, "when a tall young man in a light suit met me. 'Hello, dearie,' he said. 'Come here. I want to talk to you.'

"As I started to pass he caught my arm, but I whirled away and ran to my room. I should say it was 12:30 a. m. Sunday. I had seen him several times that week around the hotel. He had a room on the third floor."

Mrs. Price's body, showing evidences of a terrific beating, was found face down on the bed in her room, clad in night clothing. The hands were bound behind the back, and the face thrust into one of the pillows, causing death by suffocation.

A considerable sum of money, which was in the possession of Mrs. Price, was missing, and the authorities decided the woman had been killed for the purpose of robbery.

An investigation was begun which at first seemed to lead nowhere, but eventually the evidence acquired by the police pointed more and more strongly to the escaped convict.

SCULPTOR POTTER IS GRANTED A DIVORCE

Bridgeport, Ct., June 19 (A.P.).—Nathan Dumont Potter of Greenwich, a sculptor now at work on a statue of General Palmer, U. S. A., for unveiling in Colorado, was granted a divorce from Marion Farnsworth Potter of Ayer, Mass., on grounds of desertion by Judge Newell Jennings in Superior Court today. Mr. Potter is the son of the late Edward Clark Potter, one of America's famous sculptors, who died in Greenwich in 1923.

AMUNDSEN AMERICAN BACKER AND PILOT

At top, Lincoln Ellsworth, American backer of Roald Amundsen, noted explorer, in daring airplane dash to North Pole from which Amundsen's party has just returned. M'MILLAN TO RACE AMUNDSEN FOR POLE

By BERT FORD.

Wiscasset, Me., June 19—News that Raold Amundsen and his party failed in their flight to the North Pole by a distance of 170 miles because of a shortage of fuel, today gave Uncle Sam's naval birdmen with the Donald B. MacMillan expedition here renewed zeal to reach the pole by air first if possible.

But all thoughts of rivalry were

AMERICAN SAVES LIVES OF TWO COMRADES IN ARCTIC SEAS

London, June 19 (I.N.S.)—Lieutenant Lincoln Ellsworth, the Ohio aviator, who accompanied Roald Amundsen in his attempt to fly to the North Pole, rescued two members of the expedition from drowning while Amundsen's plane was ice-bound, Commander Christian Prestrud, naval attache in London of the Norwegian government, declared here today. Prestrud was with Amundsen when he discovered the South Pole.

"I have not all of the details as yet of what happened during Amundsen's flight," Prestrud told International News Service, "but I have heard a great deal of Ellsworth and his determination to reach the pole.

"I feel sure Ellsworth will work with Amundsen to start a new expedition but probably the new expedition will be with an airship because, it seems to me Amundsen has demonstrated the impracticability of aeroplanes flying to the pole.

MAY USE AN AIRSHIP.

"An airship could not land at the pole, but it could fly over it and map observations and possibly anchor over the pole.

"You will hear more of Amundsen and Ellsworth. I am sure they have not finished their ambition, and that they will yet reach the Pole.

"It was a remarkable feat," continued Prestrud in commenting on the hardships of the expedition, "for six men to extricate an aeroplane weighing a ton and a half from packed ice.

"It must have been a dramatic moment when the six men climbed in the one plane uncertain whether it would 'take off,' because, after four weeks, they could not be sure it would operate.

"They burned their bridges behind them because they had abandoned most of their equipment. If they had been forced down a hundred miles from Spitzbergen they would have had a hard fight to reach civilization. With little food and equipment they made a bold gamble and won.

FUEL PROBLEM SERIOUS.

"One of the remarkable things proved by the trip is that the fuel did not last as long as was expected. This probably was due to the cold atmosphere."

It is believed from preliminary reports which have reached here from Amundsen at King's Bay that he is convinced that on the Norwegian side of the polar regions there is nothing but ice and open water.

Amundsen today had not reached a decision whether to return to Lady Franklin Bay, 130 miles from King's Bay, for the airplane which he left

JUDGE DECIDES TEAPOT CASE

Cheyenne, Wyo., June 19 (A.P.).—Precautions of an unusual nature were taken today by Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy to prevent his decision in the Teapot Dome lease annulment suit from being made public prematurely.

As the court approached for the reading of the decision in court it became known that Judge Kennedy himself had possession of all copies of the ruling and that none of them would leave the bench until he had finished it. The decision is said to be about 20,000 words long.

Court opened at 10:02 a. m., and the judge began reading his decision at once.

The decision, at the outset, set forth the title of the suit and the government's pleading that the executive order of President Harding of May 31, 1921, transferring the naval oil reserves from the Navy to the Interior Department was granted in excess of executive authority and that Harry F. Sinclair, lessee, and Albert B. Fall, lessor, conspired in negotiating the lease.

The government's allegations of fraud and the charge that the leasing of the big oil reserve was illegal were set forth at length.

STITCHERS ONLY LYNN UNION OUT OF BOOT-SHOE

Lynn shoe workers, members of the Stitchers' Local, Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America, who voted to continue in that organization yesterday, will be left out in the cold if they stick by their decision, it was indicated today.

Of the 750 votes cast yesterday by the local on the question of joining the Boot and Shoe Workers of America, the result was 4 to 1 against.

The largest Lynn manufacturers, however, have signed up with the Boot and Shoe Workers' union in an agreement to employ none but members of that union. It is known also that of the 2,000 members of the Stitchers who did not vote yesterday, many have applied for membership in the Boot and Shoe organization.

Out of eleven Amalgamated locals in Lynn, eight have applied for charters in the opposition body.

CHILD BADLY BURNED PLAYING WITH MATCH

Matches in the hands of a child caused probably fatal burns to 3½-year-old Stella Tadbrwitz at the home of her parents, No. 40 Silver street, South Boston, today. The child was badly burned about the face, chest and hands and was taken to the City Hospital, where her name was placed on the danger list. Her mother, Mrs. Sophie Tadbrwitz, was burned on the hands while attempting to extinguish the burning clothing of the little girl.

LA FOLLETTE'S BODY GOES HOME TODAY

Washington, June 19 (I.N.S.).—Away from the strife of politics, away from the scenes of his greatest triumphs, away from the worries and toils of a swift-moving world, Senator Robert Marion La Follette of Wisconsin starts home today for his well-earned rest.

And he goes, as he said just before his death, "at peace with all the world" and "with love in my heart for all the people which sustained me throughout life."

But before he is carried away for the last time to Madison, Wis., he will lie quietly in that little home in Wyoming avenue where, with a smile on his lips and surrounded by those dearest to him—his family—he closed his eyes in eternal sleep. There he will pause for a brief few

AMUNDSEN MAY MAKE NEW DASH FOR NORTH POLE BY AIRSHIP

AMERICAN IS HERO OF FLIGHT

there when the returning expedition boarded the Norwegian sealer.

It was not thought here that he would go to Lady Franklin Bay, but would send a salvage crew or request the Norwegian government to dispatch a cruiser to bring back the plane.

There was another possibility that either the steamer, Farm of Hobby, which aided Amundsen in getting started on his initial flight, would go to Lady Franklin Bay.

CALLS TRIP SUCCESS.

The viewpoint of Norwegian scientists on Amundsen's experience have been summed up by Dr. Skattum, president of the Norwegian Geographical Society.

"It was not expected," said Dr. Skattum, "that Captain Amundsen could land at the exact situation of the North Pole. The fact that he has been away twenty-eight days proved that he has obtained useful observation data in spite of great difficulties.

"It was far easier for him when he reached the South Pole. Then he had land all of the time."

Norway Paper Calls Trip "Most Adventurous" Ever

Oslo, Norway, June 19 (A.P.).—The Aftenposten, commenting on the return to Spitzbergen of Captain Roald Amundsen and his polar expedition, terms the flight the greatest, most interesting and most adventurous that could have been made for exploration of the unknown parts of the globe.

According to the messages received, the paper says, he achieved scientific results beyond any attained by previous Arctic exploration. The fact that the Pole was not reached the newspaper finds of little importance, since the observations taken by the fliers exclude the possibility of finding land this side of the Pole.

Scientists Praise Results of Amundsen's Flight

New York, June 19 (A.P.)—Explorers and scientists rejoiced with laymen in all parts of the world today at the safe return of the Amundsen-Ellsworth North Pole airplane expedition.

The return to Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, exactly twenty-eight days after hopping off, was greeted with many expressions of "I told you so!" But the words came principally from explorers and scientists who knew Amundsen's courage and ingenuity in coping with the hazards of the polar regions.

Though the expedition fell about 150 miles short of landing at the pole, and was compelled to return partly in one plane and partly by fishing schooner, scientists expect to glean much valuable knowledge from the flight.

Donald B. MacMillan, who sails tomorrow from Wiscassett, Me., at the head of the all-American Arctic Expedition, admitted a big burden had been lifted off his mind. Amundsen's safe return, he said, would enable him to devote all his energies to science instead of first hunting for the Amundsen party. He also altered his plans so that the airplane base of the expedition will now be established at Cape Thomas Hubbard instead of Cape Columbia.

The Norwegian government, which on June 4 sent two relief planes to King's Bay, cabled congratulations to Amundsen. Earl Rossman, explorer and big game hunter, who just returned to New York from two years in the Arctic told how Eskimos said they would wait for Amundsen and Ellsworth at the former's supply depot at Wainwright, Alaska. Rossman met Amundsen at Nome in 1923, he said, and it was then the explorer's intention to fly over the pole to Alaska.

It was in an attempt to fulfill the second great dream of his life that Amundsen organized the North Pole flight. Having discovered the South Pole, the Northwest Passage and the North Magnetic Pole, he wanted to add the North Pole to his conquests. Financing the expedition was a trying task until Ellsworth advanced a sum reported to have been $85,000, about two-thirds of the total cost.

The flight has aroused keen discussion as to the effectiveness of airplanes in the Polar regions. John B. Burnham, explorer and hunter, said the outcome of the flight convinced him that Stefanson had the right idea in suggesting submarines as the best means for Arctic exploration. Continual fog, he said, renders low flying and landing perilous.

Captain Anton Heinan, former Zeppelin pilot and advisory constructor of the dirigible Shenandoah, also scoffed at the use of airplanes, but advocated dirigibles. He said there were 3,000 miles of ideal flying conditions between Lakehurst, N. J., and the Pole and couldn't understand why the Navy Department would not send either the Shenandoah or the Los Angeles on such a trip.

This "native of the snows" and the man who has braved the Arctic ices were on familiar ground as they stood aboard the Peary and chatted on the eve of the good ship's dash into the Polar regions tomorrow. They are Capt. Donald B. MacMillan, the explorer, and Mrs. Marie Strafford,

MAINE IN WILD SEND-OFF FOR M'MILLAN

Thousands to Speed Explorer From Chartered Fleet; Cloud of Balloons to Be Loosed

Augusta, Me., June 19.—That the farewell to be extended to Lieutenant-Commander Donald MacMillan will be one of the most impressive and memorable ever to be accorded a departing explorer since Peary discovered the Pole, was indicated by plans announced by Governor Ralph O. Brewster.

Preceding his departure a State banquet to be given in his honor at Newagen Inn, Southport, through the courtesy of Joshua L. Brooks, president of the Eastern States Exposition, will be attended by officials of the State and nation, of the National Geographic Society and of the United States Navy.

Special radio receiving sets will be installed and farewell messages will be received from President Coolidge, Governor Fuller of Massachusetts and other notables.

Several civic organizations outside of the State are sending special cars to Wiscasset. Among these is one from the Civitan Club of Minneapolis and one from Chicago.

The car of the Civitan Club will be in charge of Dr. John H. Moore, a classmate of Commanader MacMillan at Bowdoin College. They will charter a boat and accompany MacMillan out from Wiscasset.

HAVERHILL GIRLS THERE.

The Civitan party is unique, inasmuch as it is spending money realized from an address given under its auspices by Commander MacMillan after his last trip to the North.

Commander MacMillan will have in his party his sisters, Jessie and Eva, of Haverhill, Mass., and Mrs. Letitia Fogg of Freeport, with her two daughters, Lillian and Mae; Lieutenant-Commander Bird of the Peary, which accompanies the Bowdoin, and Lieutenant Commander of Navy E. F. MacDonald, commander of the Peary, who is also president of the American Broadcasting Association.

Many steamers have been chartered to bring parties from other States, among them one by E. Curtis Mathews of the Portsmouth, N. H., Savings Bank.

One of the most interesting features of the farewell ceremonies will be that extended by the students of Bowdoin College, Commander MacMillan's alma mater, after which his ship Bowdoin is named. They will assemble in a body at Brunswick and have arranged some new stunts in the way of farewell.

PLAN CLOUD OF BALLOONS.

Another equally interesting feature will be the farewell to be extended to Commander MacMillan by his brother Rotarians of Portland. They will assemble in a body, with appropriate emblems and will whoop it up all the way from Portland to Wiscasset.

Outside of the official recognition by government and State officials, the farewell plans to be extended to Commander MacMillan by the citizens of Maine will be the most elaborate and picturesque.

More than a thousand small craft, sail and motor, will meet at Wiscasset on the night of the 19th. They will assemble from all points on the Maine coast, and escort MacMillan when he leaves Wiscasset out toward Monhegan Island where the final farewell will be given. All of the small craft will be decorated and supplied with toy captive balloons. The boats will surround the Bowdoin and Peary and at a prearranged signal will open up letting them through, releasing at the same time thousands of balloons with "Success" and "Farewell" printed on them.

Outside of the small craft farewell which is under the direction of Vernon West, commodore of the Portland Yacht Club, a large flotilla of chartered excursion steamers will also accompany Commander MacMillan out to Monhegan. Included in these will be three United States Eagle boats, with United States Navy reserve men aboard, which will accompany him along the coast as far as Cape Sable.

NEW ARISTOS OFFICERS WILL PRESIDE SUNDAY

The newly eelcted officers of the Aristos Club will have their first public meeting Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the House of the League of Catholic Women, No. 1 Arlington street.

Miss Marie Brandon of Belmont will occupy the chair. The other executives who will be present are: Miss Helen Hollins, first vice-president; Miss Mollie Johnstone, second vice-president; Miss Helen Fox, secretary; Miss Alice Wadsworth, treasurer; the Misses Catherine Cummings, Helen Mahoney, Frances Wilkie, Marjorie Whalen, Maxine McKinley, Margaret Burke, Alice Hennessey, Myra Morris, Marion Morrissey and Lilian Marmaud, members of the board of directors.

year, spoke on "Synthetic Culture." He said past developments had all been analytical, but that we are now entering upon a second stage of syntheses or bringing together and combining of all the various units and making new or better forms.

"The analytical function was the first stage of culture, but it stopped there. The second stage we are now entering upon, though we have not gone far, has not as yet made a comprehensive analysis of the things which the several civilized peoples think it essential to pass on out of their respective experiecnes or hopes, each to its succeeding generations," Mr. Finley said.

"I can't think of an enterprise in behalf of culture," he added, "more worth undertaking than the synthetic combination. These synthetic cultural suggestions as to education are only an intimation of the gigantic task which awaits the collective human intellect, which must enlarge itself so as to embrace in one great conspectus the p roblems of the entire globe.

"The new world must be a world held together by steam and electricity, the press and commerce under the direction of a synthetic humanism."

ELECTED OVERSEERS.

The following five men were elected to the Board of Overseers, each to serve for six years:

Arthur Woods, '92, of New York city, formerly police commissioner of New York and Harvard overseer.

Rev. George A. Gordon, '81, of Boston, minister of the Old South since 1884 and former Harvard overseer.

Barrett Wendell, Jr., '02, of Chicago, Ill., banker.

M. A. DeWolfe Howe, '87, of Boston, editor and writer, vice-president of the Atlantic Monthly Publishing Company.

Albert T. Perkins, '87, of St. Louis, Mo., railway official, formerly president of the Associated Harvard Clubs.

This year, for the first time, the election was conducted by postal ballot only, the voting in Cambridge on Commencement Day having been eliminated.

cate their determination to rule the new ocean, which is THE AIR.

England is no longer an island, the protecting channel is worthless for defense. Every intelligent Englishman knows it.

Hereafter students at Oxford and Cambridge, chiefly of the leisure class, will be expected to take up flying and to make themselves first class pilots, able to fight and fly for the British Empire when they leave the University.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE set the example in that direction when he gave orders that all students at Annapolis should learn flying. He doubtless will extend the order to West Point.

YOUNG AMERICANS with leisure and money, now displaying their courage on the backs of polo ponies about fifteen hands above the earth's surface, would prove that courage more usefully if each would add to his "string" a first class flying machine and learn to fly it.

Harvard, Yale, Columbia University and the big universities of California and other states might well imitate Oxford and Cambridge.

16 CRIPPLED CHILDREN GET DIPLOMAS

Sixteen little boys and girls, otherwise handicapped by fate, had one crowded hour of perfect happiness today at the Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children.

It was graduation day and they were the graduates.

And it was just as grand and glorious an occasion as any other graduation day, in any other school, in spite of crutches, canes and wheel chairs.

The diplomas for which the little cripples had worked so hard were presented by Dr. Augustus Thorndike, chairman of the board of medical directors and one of the trustees.

Of the sixteen, nine were in the Junior High School group and seven in the grammar school group. Some will enter the high schools of Greater Boston. Others will learn trades or go into offices.

Diplomas were awarded to Christy B. Amodeo, Grace Carbone, Angelina Franzese, Rosina Guinta, Mary Gertrude MacKay, Pearl E. Mullholland, Arnold LeRoy Nelson, Thomas Dixon Shaw, Altana Mae Smith, of the Grammar Class, and Gertrude Frances Dority, Kathryn Chase Granger, Mildred Frances Livingston, Allen Harold Olson, Dorothy Pearl Pace, Charles Frances Pease, and Jacob Vegal of the Junior High Class.

The honor record for attendance is held by Mildred Livingston, who has not been absent one day in five years. Fred De Mille, living in Winthrop has missed only one day in some three years, although he is confined to a wheel chair. He is one of the contributors to the "Chanticleer," the class magazine, and is of a particularly happy nature. "The Chanticleer" is an exceedingly creditable publication by the pupils of Grade 8. Everying in the magazine is the work of the children, including the typesetting and drawings. The latter were made from lineoleum cuts, under supervision of the drawing teacher.

One of the features of the graduation exercises was the musical program. The orchestra, composed of embers of the alumni, attracted much favorable comment as also did the school singing. The music for the class song was written by Miss Mabel A. Starbird, director of music.

During the Summer, vacations have been arranged for most of the younger children at Children's Island Sanitarium, Marblehead, and at the Sunsh[illegible] Repair Shop. The older ones will have an outing under direction of Country Week of the Boston Young Men's Christian Association.

YOUTH WHO RAN DOWN 3 IN AUTO RIDE IS DEAD

Morris Mahoney, Jr., eighteen-year-old Fitchburg youth who ran down three South Boston men while driving a stolen automobile with the police in pursuit, early today died at the Carney Hospital of injuries he suffered when his car ran over the curb on Broadway, struck the men and then crashed into the side of a house.

The death of Mahoney is the second fatality that has resulted from the accident.

Walter Griffin of No. 170 K street died a few minutes after the stolen car had run him down.

20,000 TO SEE M'MILLAN IN POLE DASH overshadowed by the hearty joy expressed when the airmen heard that the plucky Norwegian explorer and his comrades were safe.

Rates that commit suicide by drowning themselves in droves; rabbits as big as lambs; white wolves and wite deer. These are the tings te MacMillan explorers will see in te far North.

Sea gulls with breasts redder than the breasts of robins; a white falcon, the swiftest and fiercest known specimen of bird life in the Arctic; an Arctic fern that migrates 11,000 miles from pole to pole; white geese and blue geese and the mystery of the breeding places of the goose family generally which puzzles sporting men and baffles scientists. These mysteries, too, are to be inquired into.

Scientists who are to accompany Commander Donald Baxter MacMillan on his National Geographic Society expedition became a little more confidential today as they got a breathing spell after seeing their odd assortment of equipment for Arctic research tucked safely aboard either the flagship Bowdoin or the steel steamship Peary, and had tidied things up sufficiently to turn around in their staterooms.

OFFICIALS INTERESTED.

They had time to reflect and to confide a wee bit to those of us lucky enough to make the first leg of the trip up from Boston, what Commander MacMillan's ninth trip into the zone of ice and snow might yield to science.

As the vanguard of what for this picturesque river community will be a "concourse of sightseers" began to arrive today, the various experts whose personnel make this polar expedition the greatest ever organized, the government and other experts felt their enthusiasm grow.

They dropped a little professional secrets of interest to the reading public. With the stage set for the monster farewell demonstration to be given MacMillan and his party by the State of Maine when he sails at 2 o'clock tomorrow, distinguished guests who are to grace the affair registered at the hotel and the Summer homes of friends.

MRS. PEARY ARRIVES.

Among the first notables to arrive were Mrs. Robert E. Peary, widow of the discoverer of the North Pole; her son, Robert E. Peary, Jr., from Portland, and General Adolphus W. Greeley, oldest living American Arctic explorer, who came from Conway, N. H.

United States Senators Fernald and Hale, the presidents of all colleges in the State and State and Federal dignitaries are expected today. Among visitors will be governors from neighboring States.

Mariners predict an ideal June day for the "kick off" tomorrow, following the banquet to be given Commander MacMillan, the scientists and the Naval aviation unit, the crews and other guests at the Newagen Inn in Southport tonight.

Perfect weather prevails. It speeded up the arduous work of packing on both Polar craft at the little pier jutting into Sheepscot River. A growing crowd of spectators watched preparations.

TO PERFUME ESKIMO GIRLS.

Commander Eugene F. MacDonald of the Peary, who hails from Chicago, has laid in a huge supply of scented soap and perfumery, both of which the Eskimo are passionately fond, but they don't use the soap. They keep it as perfumed trophies from year to year.

Commander MacDonald told of an aged Eskimo woman who treasured an inch of shaving soap and proudly exhibited it five years after Commander MacMillan had given it to her.

But to return to the bird, flower and fish life of the Arctic. Dr. Walter N. Koels of Ann Arbor, Mich., a pleasant faced, profoundly studious young man, is rated as one of the leading ichthyologists in the country, and he told of them. He has been lent to the MacMillan expedition by the United States Bureau of Fisheries. Ever since he was graduated from Ann Arbor ten years ago he has been devoting all of his professional time to the study of white fish in the Great Lakes region.

MAYOR TO BARE POORHOUSE REVELS

Youths Stage Battle Over Bride in Triangle

MANIAC SOUGHT AS HER ASSAILANT

Mrs. Lena Whitney, young Wellesley Hills mother, who reported to the police that she had been attacked in her home by a red-moustached madman. An escaped inmate of the Rhode Island State Hospital is being sought as a suspect. Photograph shows the scratches on her cheek, made, she says, by a safetypin he wielded.

WILL EXPOSE 'WILD' MEDFORD PARTY

Sensational details of a gay party staged in the women's dining room at the Medford City Home are expected to be revealed by Mayor Richard D. Coolidge of Medford at the hearing on the suspension of John J. FitzGerald, former chairman of the Board of Public Welfare.

The party, attended by several prominent officials, it is said, was at its height when the mayor and Stewart W. Millar, a member of the Board of Public Welfare, suddenly appeared on the scene.

The details of just what the mayor found going on at the party never have been made public, but immediately afterward, Fitzgerald was removed as chairman of the Board of Public Welfare by the Mayor.

Some intimation of what was going on at the party was given at a previous hearing by Mrs. Alden W. Teel, member of the Board of Public Welfare. She testified that the mayor was "tipped off" regarding the party and paid a surprise visit, breaking in on the festivities when they were at their height.

The removal of Fitzgerald, which created a sensation in Medford, has worked out to the decided advantage of Stewart W. Millar, who during the present controversy has stood by the mayor.

He now holds the positions of chairman, clerk and agent for the board, having been elected to these posts by himself and Mrs. Teel. Millar, from all the jobs, receives a total of $1,200 salary a year, of which amount $1,100 is the salary of the agent of the board.

More information is expected to be brought out at the hearing tonight concerning purchases of perfume, scented toilet powder and similar articles which were sent to the City Home, and which were paid for by the city.

When Chairman Fitzgerald was suspended, the Public Welfare Department was under investigation by the board of aldermen. The suspension came as a bombshell to the aldermen, who had not at that time, and have not yet, prepared their findings.

AGED BROOKLINE CRIPPLE IS KILLED UNDER TRUCK

Thomas McGowan, a cripple, 70 years old, of No. 11 Webster place, Brookline, was killed when run over near his home by a garbage truck operated by John F. Higgins of No. 18 Juniper street, Brookline, today.

Higgins was backing his truck in Webster place, and apparently had a clear road, according to the police. McGowan, walking with crutches, apparently got in the way of the machine, and was knocked down, one wheel passing over his head. Higgins was held on a technical charge of operating so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public.

REPRIEVE SAVES MAN; COMPANION HANGED

Sorel, Quebec, June 19 (A.P.)—An eleventh-hour reprieve, commuting his sentence to life imprisonment, saved Hermengilde Dufault from hanging today for the murder, last November, of Emile Pelletier, a butcher of Sorel.

Dufault's nineteen-year-old companion, Henri Messier, convicted with him for the murder, was hanged in the jail early this morning.

Pelletier was robbed and beaten so badly he died.

FIRST HUSBAND WINS AWARD IN COURT

Harry Laeritz is a successful bridegroom, but he must pay $25 to Samuel Sulman of Manchester, N. H., first husband of the bride, as a result of a little West End altercation growing out of a first-class triangle.

Laeritz, who is thirty-two, and lives at No. 4 Auburn street, West End, also has a suspended sentence of one month in the House of Correction hanging over him—this, too, the outgrowth of the romance that brought up finally in municipal court.

The young men, according to the police, battled for the bride in a West End street, with Sulman, the ex-husband, being defeated a bit by Laeritz, the prospective husband.

ROMANTIC DREAMS.

It was a situation in which every romantic girl some time dreams herself placed—the prize of contest.

Sulman, known in New Hampshire as "Dickie the Dancer," was divorced last November by his wife, formerly Alice Porter, but Sulman, according to the police, claimed the divorce was not legal according to Jewish customs.

Alice claimed that payment by her to Sulman of $150 had filled the requirements, but Sulman felt so bad that he gave a story to a Boston newspaper.

Meanwhile Laeritz had wooed and won the acceptance of Alice, and when he met Sulman the first husband was chided, it is alleged, for being so churlish as to sob to the public.

COMPLAINS TO POLICE.

Then the battle of the West End is alleged to have started, with Laeritz emerging victorious and Sulman hastening to the Joy street station to charge his victorious rival with assault and battery.

It so happened that this was Laeritz's planned wedding night and hearing of his impending arrest, he beat the unromantic police to it by appearing at the station with a bondsman and leaving again under bail.

But in court Judge Burke figured that the ex-husband's feelings had been lacerated $25 worth at least, which sum was awarded.

Tells Court Sister Died in Suicide; Murder Pact to Cheat Want

Paris, June 19 (A.P.)—Anna Levasser, a dressmaker, was tried today before a court of the Seine department for murdering her sister, Anaïs, who, the prisoner contends begged to be put out of her misery because she was doomed to death from tuberculosis. Two other sisters died from the disease.

The prosecutor argued she made a living with difficulty and wished to get rid of the burden of supporting her sister.

Telling the story of her "pity" murder in court, Anna exclaimed to the judge, "you would do the same."

The real murderer, she declared, was the landlord who tried to put her and her sister out of their apartment.

The death resulted from a murder-suicide pact, she said.

La Follette to Lie in State in Madison

hours, that the people he loved and for whom he fought for so many years may pay final tribute to his memory.

THOUSANDS MOURN.

And to him these people came throughout the long, hot day. They were of all sorts, rich and poor, high official and clerk, one in grief at the passing of this dynamic little man who for more than three decades had been so prominently in the national political arena.

They came to express condolences to the widow and the two sons and two daughters, and to pause a moment before the unpretentious coffin that held his mortal remains. There was grief, deepest grief, in the little flower-filled home, but for all, it seemed as if "Dad" as they called him, had laid down to rest and had fallen asleep, and the whispering and tip-toeing were that he should not be awakened.

They were a brave lot—his family—and they bore up well under the terrific strain. For weeks they had gone sleepless to stay by his side as he lay seriously ill; they had administered his every need; they realized that the end was approaching but they never flinched, not one, and least of all Mrs. La Follette.

SIMPLE JOURNEY.

La Follette always hated trappings and pomp and hypocrisy. He lived a full life — three score and ten —of utmost simplicity.

In death simplicity will mark his last journey homeward and his funeral.

The funeral train, a special section of the Capital Limited of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, will leave Washington at 3 o'clock for Madison. The coffin will be placed on a simple catafalque in the observation car. The family will occupy compartments in the same car. persistent, whole-hearted championship of popular, untrammeled government."

SENATOR GEORGE H. MOSES of Concord, N. H., issued this tribute: "Senator La Follette was one of the strong men in the public life of his generation and he made a deep impression upon the legislation of both his State and the Nation. He had few equals as a debater and his discussion of public questions was always thoughtful and well buttressed. Though widely differing from him in most of his fundamental theories of government, I always found him a fair and courteous opponent."

SENATOR BORAH, of Idaho, said:—"In death as in life there will be wide and violent differences of view as to the character and capacity of Senator La Follette. But I think all will have to concede that he possessed ability of a rare order; that he was untiring in industry, unrelenting in purpose and incorruptible as he was fearless."

La Follette's Last Editorial Tribute to W. S. Stone

Madison, Wis., June 19, (A.P.)—Senator Robert M. La Follette's last words addressed to the public paid tribute to his friend, Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who died one week before Wisconsin's senior Senator. The words are in an editorial written for the current issue of La Follette's Magazine.

"In the death of Warren Stone America has lost one of her great men, democracy one of its truest champions," Senator La Follette wrote.

"Nature endowed him with great intellect, a stout heart and incorruptible honesty. Had he been made of different stuff he might have blinded himself to the suffering and injustice of a harsh industrial system in the pursuit of riches. But Warren Stone had a sensitive social conscience. He took up the work of life in the spirit of a strong young giant and raised his shield in defence of the masses of mankind. His material accomplishments were great, but his victories were won in the service of his fellows and shared with a host of common men and women."

La Follette Champion of "Plain People," Says Bryan

Jacksonville, Fla., June 19 (A.P.)—Senator LaFollette was termed "an outstanding champion of the rights of the plain people against the encroachments of corporate power," by William Jennings Bryan, in a statement today.

"His passing will be mourned by scores of official friends and by many others—friends of reform," Mr. Bryan said. "His fight extended over a generation and was made where his enemies were the strongest entrenched.

"His sympathies were with the masses and he had the ability to plead their cause and the courage to make his stand against all criticism."

Wheeler Among Senators to Attend Funeral

Washington, June 19 (A.P.)—A special train will bear the body of Senator Robert M. LaFollette to Madison, Wis.

The original plans called for travel on a regular train, but the size of the funeral party made it necessary for the railroads to furnish additional facilities.

Senator Wheeler of Montana, the Wisconsin Senator's running mate in the 1924 presidential campaign, will attend the funeral as a member of the Senate committee. Many others who have followed his political fortunes also were included among those designated.

SENATE COMMITTEE.

The full Senate committee is composed of: Senators Lenroot, Wisconsin; Borah, Idaho; Cummins, Iowa; Reed, Missouri; Norris, Nebraska; Robinson, Arkansas; Jones, New Mexico; Kendrick, Wyoming; Moses, New Hampshire; Ladd and Frazier, North Dakota; Norbeck, South Dakota; Brookheart, Iowa; Couzens, Michigan; Copeland, New York; Shipstead, Minnesota.

The entire Wisconsin delegation in the House was named and Representative Reid of Illinois also will attend.

Under present arrangement, Chicago will be reached at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, Central Standard time. The train will leave there an hour later for the Wisconsin capital.

Members of the family are undecided as to where the body will be taken from the train. It may be carried first to the La Follette home just outside of Madison to remain there until early Sunday, the day it will lie in state in the State House.

FUNERAL ON MONDAY.

Funeral services will be held in the Capitol rotunda at 11 a. m. Monday. The Rev. Dr. A. E. Hayden of the University of Chicago School of Divinity will conduct the services. Burial will be in Forest Hill Cemetery.

Besides members of the immediate family and members of the congressional delegation, the funeral party from Washington will include Gilbert E. Roe, former law partner of Senator La Follette, and his Eastern campaign manager last year; Basil M. Manly, a close personal friend, who accompanied him throughout his campaign tour last Fall, and Miss Grace Lynch, for several years the Senator's confidential secretary.

A testimonial to the workers of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Hebrew Educational Alliance, Harold street, Roxbury, and their huge success with the recent bazaar held by the organization was given at the Alliance building. S. Meltzer, member of the board of directors, acted as toastmaster.

Speaking for the Jewish youth, Mr. Gateman, president of the Roxbury Kernwood Club, promised assistance to the Hebrew Education Alliance next year and lauded their work as a "necessary and vital factor in the shaping and moulding of Jewish young boys and girls." Other speakers, J. Milgrom, H. L. Fleisher, L. Yarchin, I. Fritz and S. Friedman, all expressed their admiration for the work of the Alliance and the success of the bazaar.

Mrs. H. Weinberg, chairman of the bazaar, spoke on behalf of the ladies and expressed co-operation with the men. Assenting in unison were Mrs. B. Ornstein, Mrs. S. Friedman, Mrs. J. Milgrom, Mrs. Bluestone, Mrs. I. Fritz and Mrs. S. Rosenbaum.

As an appreciation of their service for the Alliance gifts from the members were presented to Mrs. H. Weinberg, Mrs. A. Ornstein and Mrs. J. Milgrom at the final meeting of the organization held at the Hebrew Educational Alliance Building.

The meeting served a two-fold purpose: That of presenting a financial report of the organization and of celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of its founding. It was decided upon that the pupils of the school would be taken on an outing on June 30. Parents of the children and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary were invited to attend.

WORLD PEACE PLEA MADE BY GERMANY

Ready to Enter League and Asks Guarantees on Rhine Territory

By ROBERT J. FREW.

London, June 19 (Universal).—Germany's proposal for a pact guaranteeing peace in Europe and the French reply thereto were issued by the British foreign office in the form of a "White Paper." It is regarded today as the most important diplomatic paper since the Versailles treaty, as it uncovers the fundamental causes of the chronic unrest in Europe.

France declares her readiness to enter the pact provided Germany does not attempt to revise the peace treaties and agrees to join the League of Nations, subscribing to the terms of the covenant.

SWEEPING PEACE PROGRAM.

The German memorandum, dated February 9, with which the negotiations opened, states that "Germany could declare her acceptance of a pact by virtue of which the powers interested on the Rhine, and above all England, France, Italy and Germany, entered a solemn obligation for a lengthy period, inviting the government of the United States of America as a trustee, not to wage war against any contracting State.

"Germany is also prepared to conclude analagous arbitration treaties providing for the peaceful settlement of judicial and political conflicts with all other States as well.

FRENCH AND BRITISH DRAFTS.

"Furthermore a pact expressly guaranteeing the present territorial status of the Rhine would also be acceptable to Germany. The purport of such a pact could be, for instance, that the interested States bound themselves to reciprocally observe the inviolability of the present territorial status of the Rhine."

The "White Paper" contains copies of France's draft in reply, of Britain's counter draft, and finally the text of the note from the French government which was handed to Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany on June 16.

Bogan, chief of the assessment division of the street laying-out department as guide.

With Mrs. Borgmeier when she came to City Hall were Miss Mary E. MacNeill, State department commander; Mrs. Margaret L. Bogan, State secretary; Mrs. Huldane D. Whitcomb and Mrs. Wilfred M. Harrington.

Rotch-Greenough Wedding Is Climax in Brilliant Boston Nuptial Season

Eight Lovely Bridesmaids and Fourteen Ushers Part of Impressive Entourage

Betty Alden

A BRIDE MORE THAN USUALLY CHARMING, a youthful bridegroom of popularity and great collegiate fame, a wedding entourage very impressive as to numbers and pulchritude, and a wedding company filling Emmanuel Church to overflowing, all marked the bridal of Miss Kathleen Lawrence Rotch and Malcolm Whelen Greenough as the social climax of the town's nuptial pageantry.

FOURTEEN USHERS, very distinguished in formal wedding array, eight lovely young girls as bridesmaids, Mrs. James Storrow, Jr. (Margaret Rotch) as matron of honor, and the full vested choir escorted the bride altarward through a flowerlike lane of white lilies, rambler roses and blue larkspur.

ARTHUR ROTCH, brother of the bride, gave her in marriage, and the Rev. Endicott Peabody of Groton School read the marriage lines. Emmanuel's exquisite altar was very simply decorated with clustered white lilies before the chancel rail.

THE BRIDE, a vivacious and lovely girl, graceful and chic to her fingertips, made a lovely picture of nuptial beauty in white chiffons and laces. Her great-grandmother's delicate old laces fashioned over a foundation of chiffon, with long court train of lace and veil of gossamer tulle in cap effect bound with orange blossoms, were infinitely becoming.

MRS. STORROW, older by two or three years than the very youthful bride (she just came out the past Winter), wore white organdie over yellow, sashed with golden yellow moire ribbon, a fichu about the shoulders and a wide and shady garden hat of yellow atop her head.

THE EIGHT bridesmaids were likewise in crisp white organdie over apple-green slips. Their sashes, with huge bows, were of green, and their hats, like Mrs. Storrow's, of the floppy variety with one enormous flower poised at the brim edge, also were of the leafy tint. Altogether as cool and delicate a color scheme as could be imagined.

SISTER-BUDS OF the bride were attendants. Miss Anne Tudor, daughter of the Henry Dubois Tudors of Boston, Cambridge and New York; Miss Theodora Ayer, blonde and slender daughter of the Charles Fanning Ayers of Boston and Topsfield; Miss Sally Dexter, Mr. and Mrs. William Endicott Dexter's daughter, were in the good-to-look-upon group.

ALSO MISS ELIZABETH VAN C. Lyman, the Ronald T. Lymans' daughter, whose advent in the social arena is marked down on next Autumn's brilliant calendar, and Miss Mary Otis, who came out Winter before last and queened it in charming girl fashion as the beautiful daughter of the stately Mrs. Herbert Foster Otis.

MISS CLARISSA WOLCOTT of Readville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Wolcott (Claire M. Price), a prominent debutante of the future, attended, also two out-of-town girls, Miss Mary Christy Tiffany of St. Louis, Mo., and Miss Cary Anderson of Richmond, Va.

HARVARD MEN of the Porcellian and Hasty Pudding cliques stood forth as ushers and best man. John T. Pratt, Jr., of New York (his parents, the John T. Pratts, came over for Class Day and the wedding) filled best man role; Robert H. Hallowell, Jr., of Milton, Philip H. Theopold of Faribault, Minn., and Benjamin F. Rice-Bassett of New York (he marries Miss Gertrude Russell next Monday) were ushers.

ALSO E. MAURAN BEALS, Arthur L. Hobson, Jr., Willis P. Beal, James J. Mapes, Alfred Codman, Jr., Hugh Whitney, James O. Bangs, Bostonians; Henry M. Bolhen of Philadelphia, John R. Hooker of San Francisco, James H. Tailer, Jr., of New York, and A. Brooks Harlow of Milwaukee, all prominent in the social and athletic structure of Harvard.

IMMEDIATELY AFTER the church ceremonial the distinguished company went on to 182 Beacon street, residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Henry Parkman, Jr., for the wedding reception and breakfast. There, too, there was a profusion of rambler roses, larkspur and lilies spicing the air with fragrance.

OF the scores of wedding guests at both church and home, Mrs. John Chipman Gray and Mrs. Henry Dubois Tudor (mother and grandmother of Miss Anne Tudor of the bridesmaids) Mrs. Roger Wolcott, in black satin and lace, Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman in black with wide black hat (Miss Elizabeth Lyman is her daughter) were seen.

ALSO Mrs Charles Upton Curtis, Mrs. Wolcott Howe Johnson, Mrs. William Endicott Dexter—her daughter Miss Sally Dexter, graced the bridesmaid group, Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer (her daughter, Miss Theodore, also was of that pretty set) General and Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards, Mrs. Charles T. Lovering, Jr., and her two daughters, Mrs. Josiah H. Child (Ellen Lovering) and Miss Lovering.

MRS. CHILDS, by the way, was herself a bride in that selfsame church hardly two months ago, in April, to be exact. Mrs. John Jay Hicks Kerr (Helen Clark) Mrs. Uriel Haskell Crocker (Eleanor Batchelder) both newly married, Miss Annie Endicott Nourse, Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott, Mr and Mrs. Dudley R. Howe and Mr and Mrs. Charles P. Greenough, 2d, were wedding guests.

ALSO in the company were any number of young girl friends of the bride, Miss Elizabeth Taylor, daughter of the William O. Taylors, Miss Helen Moseley, daughter of the Frederick S. Moseleys, both buds of the past Winter, Miss Elizabeth Stackpole and Miss Margaret Thayer, Miss Penelope and Miss Margaret Curtis, older by a year or so than the bride, Miss Helen Lovering and Miss Elizabeth Sprague.

MR. AND MRS. HORACE BINNEY, Miss Jane Noble and Miss Juliet Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Griswold (Penelope Parkman), Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., and their bud daughter, Miss Emily Coolidge, were also seen.

THE COOLIDGES and their daughter, with John S. Lawrence and his daughter, Miss Eloise Lawrence, also to be a bud next Autumn, held a little family reunion, by the way, as Mrs. Coolidge (she was Edith Photograph by Bachrach.

Miss Theodora Ayer, daughter of the Charles Fanning Ayers, came home from Europe just in time to be a bridesmaid for the marriage of Miss Kathleen Rotch and Malcolm Whelen Greenough, Harvard, 1925, a very large and very brilliant ceremonial in Emmanuel Church.

Couple Will Take Up Residence Here After Honeymoon Trip

Lawrence, sister of John S. Lawrence and Amos Lawrence) had but just returned from Paris and London.

MRS. NATHANIEL EMMONS was a handsome figure in the assemblage, in a creation of taupe with matching ostrich and wide hat of maline. Mrs. Emmons is of the Lawrence family. She was Elizabeth Lawrence, her mother the late distinguished Mrs. James Lawrence, beloved and respected by the many for her wide philanthropical works.

BUT RETURNING to the central figures of the bridal pageant, Mr. and Mrs. Greenough, she as Kathleen Rotch came out during the mid-Winter at a brilliant dinner and ball at the Hotel Somerset, presided over by Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson Storrow, Jr. (Margaret Rotch) and Mr. and Mrs. Storrow, Sr. (Helen Osborne).

MRS. GREENOUGH'S father was the late Professor Abbott Lawrence Rotch. Her social progress has been gayest of the gay, the large mid-Winter function setting the ball rolling through a succession of fetes in her honor, not the least important and interesting the engagement tea staged in the early Spring.

AS TO THE bridegroom, verily his college honors are many. He was chairman of the class day committee, president of the 1925 class, vice-president of the Varsity Club, captained the 1924 football team and belongs to the S. K. and the Porcellian. Also to the Myopia, of hunting fame.

HIS PARENTS were the late Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm S. Greenough, Jr. (Violet Whelen), and Malcolm S. Greenough of Gloucester street, Somerset Club, Harvard '68, is his paternal grandfather, with whom he made his home. There is a honeymoon journey of some eight or ten weeks on the tapis for the bride and bridegroom before they set up their new home in town.

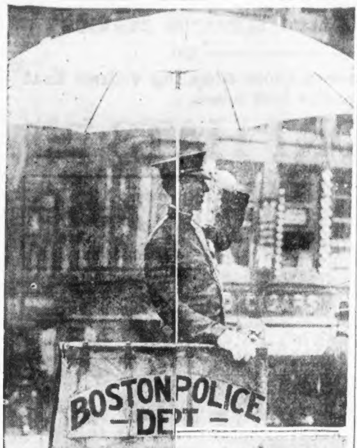
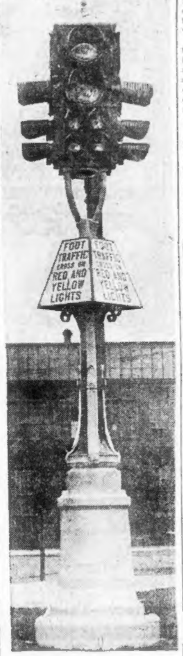
NEW AND OLD TYPES OF TRAFFIC STAND





Upper left picture shows the "pipe and canvas" style of traffic control stand opposed by Boston residents. Right, is the new automatic control to be erected at Tremont and Boylston streets.

HUB MAN WILL BOOST PORT

A modern Paul Revere of Business, is hurrying Westward on a mission fraught with great significance to the commercial future of the Port of Boston.

He is Frederick W. Davis, manager of the Maritime Association of the Chamber of Commerce and the message he bears is the well-substantiated appeal of New England to Pacific Coast and Western States to take note of the super-advantages of the greatest port on the north Atlantic seaboard.

Briefly, Davis is Boston's emissary to the twelfth annual National Foreign Trade Convention in Seattle, Washington, June 24 to 26.

Mr. Davis not only represents the Maritime Association but also has been delegated by Governor Fuller and Mayor Curley to represent the Commonwealth and the City of Boston in his tour as a commercial missionary.

But Manager Davis' trip will not be limited to Seattle. When he left the South Station he carried the Port of Boston film recently completed, which he will exhibit in several of the most important cities en route.

He will give showings of the film to commercial organizations for the purpose of promoting trade intercourse by pointing out the superior facilities for handling inter-coastal trade through the Port of Boston.

Manager Davis will return to Boston late in July when he will report on the result of his pilgrimage.

PLAN BOARD AID RAPS TRAFFIC PLATFORMS

The secretary of the Boston planning board, Miss Elizabeth M. Herlihy, today joined forces with downtown business houses in criticism of the traffic platforms, which dot the intersections of the city thoroughfares.

Simultaneously with the publication of Miss Herlihy's adverse views on the police department's stands of iron pipe and canvas, came the announcement from the office of Deputy Superintendent Thomas F. Goode that on Sunday an improved type of traffic control tower would be installed at Boylston and Tremont streets.

"Since my connection with the city planning board," said Miss Herlihy, "I have had occasion to visit every city of importance from Boston harbor to the Golden Gate, and having driven through most of them by automobile, I have made an unofficial study of their traffic posts.

LACK ARTISTRY.

"Recalling the types of traffic stands passed in these tours of the country, there was none so lacking in artistry as those now used by the downtown traffic police of Boston.

"For generations our citizenry has prided itself on the individualism of Boston architecture, its graceful lines and originality, but the works of iron pipe and canvas cover now seen on our streets detract from whatever beauty their environment possesses."

The type of traffic stand so thoroughly detested by Miss Herlihy is a sorry spectacle beside the new apparatus designed for the Boylston and Tremont street corner. The one resembles a circus "barker's" cage, the other is the latest word in mechanical control system, combined with decorative art.

The Boylston tower will not differ greatly from the apparatus in use there at present but will entail less intricacy in its operation from the officer's post on the sidewalk.

MASSED PROTEST.

A new feature of the signal system to be erected on Sunday will be the installation of a direct line from the traffic post to the LaGrange street station, by means of which the officer on the traffic post can almost instantaneously notify the station of any untoward happenings at the Boylston-Tremont street corner or its vicinity.

The objectors to the less pretentious traffic stands in other sections of the city look enviously on the elaborate signal system to occupy the Boylston-Tremont corner and are contemplating a massed protest through the columns of the Boston Evening American to Deputy Superintendent Good for remedial measures towards the present traffic stand problem at their doors.

U. S. to Distribute Many Patent Models

Washington, June 19 (A.P.)—A general clearing out of models of inventions accumulated at the Patent Office during the last 75 years has been ordered by Commissioner Robertson.

Under a law passed by the last Congress the Patent Office, with co-operation of the Smithsonian Institution, has selected for permanent retention models deemed industrially or scientifically worthy, and will return the others to patentees, if demanded. Unclaimed models will be given to State or private museums if wanted. There are 150,000 in all.

The first telephone and sewing machine models, and the invention of Abraham Lincoln for assisting river steamboats to escape from the clutch of shoals have been reserved.

FOOD PRICES INCREASE 7 PER CENT. IN YEAR

Washington, June 19 (A.P.)—The retail cost of food in May was about half of 1 per cent. higher than in April, it was shown in a Bureau of Labor statistics report today, giving the bureau's index number for May as 151.6. The index, 100 representing the year 1913, was 150.8 in April. For the year ending last May 15 prices increased approximately 7.5 per cent. Between April 15 and May 15 fourteen food articles on which the bureau obtained reports advanced in prices from half of 1 per cent. to 26 per cent. Sixteen articles declined in cost from half of 1 per cent. to 4 per cent. and thirteen articles remained stationary in price.

QUINN STRONG FOR ACCIDENT INSURANCE

"Best thing yet!"

This was the opinion expressed by Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge as he appended the signature that graces every official document that leaves City Hall in the University City to a $7,500 insurance policy of the Boston Evening American.

Mayor Quinn told the Boston Evening American representative at Cambridge City Hall that although he was already insured he was pleased to avail himself of an opportunity like this afforded.

"Never saw a better insurance feature offered by anyone," he said. "I am a strong advocate of insurance anyway. Everybody should carry insurance of some kind."

Others at the Cambridge City Hall are ready to take advantage of the insurance feature which is being talked of on all sides in Cambridge. Many Cambridge people have already enrolled as members in the insurance family of the Boston Evening American, and many others are falling in line.

The insurance only enrolls Home Delivery subscribers to the Boston Evening American. Those that wish to enroll in the insurance feature fill out the coupon in the edition of the Boston Evening American and mail it to the Insurance Department. If you are not a regular subscriber all you have to do is to signify your intention of becoming such. The rate for home delivered papers is 12 cents a week.

WIFE DESERTS HUSBAND AND NINE CHILDREN

Bangor, Me., June 19—An unusual case of desertion was brought to the attention of the Bangor municipal court when Grace C. [illegible], chairman of the Brewer Municipal Board of Children's Guardians, complained that Mrs. Christine I. Arey of South Brewer had deserted her husband and nine small children because her husband had refused to buy her a new hat and shoes.

BUILDING UP OF U. S. AIR MAIL IS URGED

Benefits Are Pointed Out by First Assistant Postmaster-General Bartlett

Lebanon, N. H., June 19—Development of the U. S. air mail regardless of the cost was urged before the postmasters of New Hampshire and Vermont by First Assistant Postmaster-General John H. Bartlett.

In case of national emergency a well trained force of airmen would be of untold value, Mr. Bartlett declared, pointing out that with 150 trained pilots it would be a comparatively easy matter, in case all other means of communication were disabled, to carry messages from the Atlantic to the Pacific in a single day.

The postmasters are holding the annual election of officers at today's session.

PEONY AND ROSE SHOW OPENS TOMORROW NOON

Both peonies and roses will be exhibited at the flower show which opens in Horticultural Hall tomorrow noon and continues until 6 o'clock Sunday night. It was found necessary to combine the peony and rose exhibitions because of the unusual season, and the result will be a remarkable display of blooms. The principal features of the show will be two great gardens, one composed entirely of peonies surrounded by tall evergreen trees, and the other made up of mixed perennials in a similar setting. It is expected that there will be very strong competition for the silver cup offered by President Albert C. Burrage for the best exhibition at the show. There will be lectures on peonies and roses, Saturday and Sunday, and as usual the exhibition and lectures will be free.

Guaranteed 10 Years Gold Filled Sold With a $15 Value Guarantee $5

THE Watch trade is still in a bad way from the effects of the War, and for anybody who has any idea of ever buying a Watch this is the time to do it. You can act on this bit of advice from us, as we have been in business for more than 35 years and have never seen anything like it, not even in the panic of 1893 and 1907. Two of our largest manufacturers have failed. Many of their watches have been sent out of the country. Many are being held for higher prices, but we shall sell our purchases now, being convinced that it will strengthen our position with our customers. Tomorrow we offer one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three full Gentlemen's Size Gold Filled Watches, Guaranteed for 10 years with jeweled and adjusted movements, all timed and regulated and ready for the pocket, for $5 each. EVERY ONE WILL BE SOLD WITH THE DISTINCT UNDERSTANDING THAT IF IT CAN BE DUPLICATED IN THE REGULAR WAY FOR LESS THAN $15 (and this can be verified by any reputable jeweler) THE MONEY, EVERY CENT OF IT, WILL BE REFUNDED. Better still, we will guarantee to take it back any time within 10 years in exchange at the price you paid. These are good, MADE UPON HONOR timepieces. All ready for the pocket and no man will live long enough to wear one out. Mail or telephone orders will be filled for three days only; no dealers will be supplied. CRASH BALKED 'SUICIDE PACT' ON MAY 30

Mills and Amidon Girl's Plan Thwarted by Auto Accident, New Theory

An automobile accident in which Sterling Mills, Wellesley High School athlete figured on May 30, prevented the youth and his sweetheart, Priscilla Amidon, 15-year-old schoolgirl, from carrying out their so-called suicide pact on that day.

The Amidon girl is dead of a bullet wound through the head, while young Mills is at the Newton Hospital preparing to undergo an operation as a result of the wound in his own head.

From a new source, it was learned today that ten days before the girl and boy were found shot after a quarrel in a clump of bushes in Wellesley Hills, they had planned to end their lives.

On Memorial Day, the day they were to die together, it is alleged, young Mills suffered an injured arm and shoulder in an automobile accident, and these injuries delayed the carrying out of the pact.

The inquest by the county authorities, which is expected to be a purely routine proceedings, will not take place until after Mills has undergone an operation, probably about July 1.

The inquest, it is understood, has been arranged for the sole purpose of clearing up the case, and it is unlikely the details which led up to the double shooting and which are in the hands of the authorities, will ever be made public.

$1,500,000 BILL AGAINST MRS. SAYLES IS DISMISSED

Providence, June 19. — Federal Judge James M. Morton of Boston handed down an opinion sustaining the motion to dismiss the bill in equity brought by the Chase National Bank of New York and others against Mrs. Mary D. A. Sayles and others to recover $1,500,000.

The sum involved is alleged to have been assigned by Mrs. Sayles, who is the widow of Frank A. Sayles, late of Pawtucket, to Frederick K. Ruppecht of Greenwich, Conn., a textile promoter, and transferred by him to the Chase National Bank.

The bill in equity was filed against Mrs. Sayles in Federal Court, September 24 last, and the motion to dismiss the bill was argued before Judge Morton April 27.

CHEAPER SHOES BRING BOOM TO BROCKTON

Factories Running Full Time as Unions Cut Scale for New Class of Work

Brockton, June 19—The manufacture of cheap shoes is bringing prosperity back to the Brockton shoe industry.

In factories here that have never turned out any save the highest grade shoes, a cheap grade of footwear is to be manufactured for a large chain store company and to permit the manufacturers to make these shoes at a profit, the shoe workers, through their local unions have agreed to a new wage scale with reduced rates for the cheaper grade of work.

For several years past the Brockton shoe industry has been at a standstill and the shoe workers are elated with the turn things have taken.

A majority of the local unions have agreed to a proposition for the lower wage scale submitted by the Wall, Doyle & Daly Shoe Co. while other firms plan to ask for similar scales.

The prosperity wave was further aided by the announcement from the W. L. Douglas Company that, starting Monday, the firm will go on a 6,00 pairs a day basis, while the Brockton Shoe Company is also going on full time, producing 2,400 pairs a day.

Uses Shotgun to Defend Loved Moustache

Attleboro, June 19.—John Texeira of Norton can take reasonable means to protect the moustachios which bristle from his upper lip, but a loaded shotgun is too much armament for the protection of the hirsute adornment, in the mind of Judge Haggerty.

Texeira was fined in court for a breach of the peace, in that he invited Joseph Sousa, a neighbor, to "come over and be shot," while he brandished the shotgun.

Texeira testified that his neighbors threatened to cut off or shoot off his moustache. One neighbor, he said, even shot at his moustache.

CHILDREN SAVE FATHER FROM JAIL TERM

Man Convicted After 'Brickbottom' Raids Fined on Plea of Family

Charles T. Kenney of East Somerville, a defendant in the "Brickbottom" liquor cases, escaped a jail sentence when his family of four children were brought into court by their mother. Kenney pleaded guilty to four counts of violating the liquor laws and was fined $50.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Bushnell, in prosecuting the case, told Judge Nelson P. Brown he did not care to make any recommendation as to sentence. He also said the liquor nuisance alleged to have been operated by Kenney was not, strictly speaking, in the Brickbottom district, and should not be classed with the number of cases before the court.

POWERS OFFER TO MAKE PEACE IN CHINA

Overtures Are Made to Pekin Government; New Strike Riots Are Reported

Peking, June 19 (A.P.).—The foreign powers today suggested to the Chinese government the undertaking of negotiations to settle both the questions arising from recent disturbances in Shanghai and also to discuss the broad aspect of conditions in China generally.

It is understood the diplomatic corps will propose that a delegation representing the United States, France and Italy discuss questions of the administration of their foreign concessions in Shanghai with a view to meeting the Chinese desires.

London, June 19.—New anti-foreign riots have broken out in Shanghai and Changking and rioters have wrecked British and Japanese shops, according to dispatches reaching here today. A general strike is threatened for Canton.

There is apprehension in Tien Tsin that a crisis is fast approaching. New organizations were demanding that China declare war on Great Britain. Chinese newspapers charged the British Consul with "unjust cruelties" against the Chinese.

The Chinese government was said to be disinclined to check Communist propaganda.

Britain Warns Chinese Against Further Outrages

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—Great Britain's declaration that she will hold the Peking government responsible for injuries to British nationals and damage to British property was the outstanding development of the last twenty-four hours in the situation arising from the strenuous anti-foreign campaign in China.

Pronouncement of the British determination was made in the House of Commons by Foreign Secretary Chamberlain, who said the government's stand was necessitated "by the outrages that have taken place."

This was a reference to the assassination early this week of W. W. MacKenzie at Shanghai, the still more recent mobbing of a British motorcycle constable in the same city, the attack on the British settlement at Hankow, which was repulsed by machine-gun fire, and numerous other incidents at scattered places throughout the former celestial kingdom.

Hankow, June 19 (A.P.)—The feature of the situation in this city, which has been quiet since the recent rioting is the publication by the Chinese newspapers of misleading reports regarding the events at Shanghai and other places.

Students are arriving from Hong Kong and Peking with the credited intention of promoting a boycott against the foreigners.

Chinese Ship Strike Spreads to Hongkong

Hongkong, June 19 (A.P.). — The shipping strike spread to Hongkong today. Chinese students here also struck and decided to send a committee to Canton in connection with the proposed general strike movement. Steamship sailings to Canton and Macao have been cancelled.

CHILD DIES IN 3-STORY FALL DURING SLEEP

Yonkers, N. Y., June 19 (A.P.).—Walking in her sleep early today, Alice Murray, thirteen years old, fell three stories from her bedroom window, to an alleyway below and was killed. She was the daughter of John J. Murray, an accountant.

MAINE CENTRAL ROAD TO OPERATE BUSES

Augusta, Me., June 19.—Two applications to operate a jitney service, one between Bangor and Bar Harbor and the other between Portland and Harrison, were filed by the Samoset Company, a subsidiary organization of the Maine Central Railroad Company.

POLICE ASKED TO FIND MISSING WEYMOUTH MAN

Police have been asked to assist in finding Robert Martin, 27, who disappeared after leaving his home Sunday to attend a meeting of the board of directors of the Economy Grocery Stores. He lives at Pleasant street and Wood road, East Weymouth.

CONCORD GROWS, ATHOL LOSES, CENSUS INDICATES

Concord has gained in population during the last five years, according to the completed State census, made public by the board of selectmen. There are now 7,038 inhabitants, an increase of 577 over the figure in 1920.

Athol, June 19.—The closing of the Lee Bros. shoe factory nearly two years ago is blamed for the decrease of 824 persons in the population of this town, revealed by the 1925 census, just completed. The 1925 figures are 9,468. The factory employed 500 people in normal times.

Back in Prison, Why?---By Donald Lowrie

Amazing Story of a Man's Struggle Against Temptations That Pulled Him Down to Die in a Cell

"She's dead, the young, beautiful and lovable Ruth, is dead," sobbed the mother. Lowrie breaks under the tragic news of the girl he once loved.

(Posed for the Boston Evening American by Paul Porter as Lowrie and Olive Bond as the mother, both of the "Rose-Marie" company now playing in Boston.)

CHAPTER LI.

ONE morning I had a telephone call from New York urging [illegible] right down. It was from Mrs. Bright, mother of Ruth's [illegible] stage partner. She would not tell what she wished to see me about, but was insistent that I make the trip at once. Curious and mystified, I agreed to do so, taking myself to task for not having got in touch with Ruth as I had promised myself I would. On that morning I had seen her quarreling with Bright in the park. In a vague sort of way I had since [illegible] that Ruth had split up with Bright and returned to San Francisco. I had resentfully wondered why she had not at least called me up to say goodby, but at the same time had to admit that I had been neglectful of her.

I caught a [illegible] train for New York [illegible] curred.

"She's dead—young and beautiful and [illegible] lamb."

First Adult Tears Shed While Sober

[illegible]

Gradually I learned the details and that it was too late to send flowers or do anything. The suicide had occurred ten days before and the first intimation Mrs. Bright had of it was [illegible] asking if she knew anything [illegible] diamonds [illegible] possessed for several years. [illegible] me she had [illegible] box [illegible] San Francisco.

Her Nervous System Wrecked by Drugs

It wasn't long after [illegible] that I learned the [illegible] Ruth's last year of life. She had [illegible] addicted to morphine and [illegible] on her return to San Francisco after leaving Bright in New York.

It wasn't long before her nervous system was completely wrecked and she was taken to a hospital where [illegible] dangerously ill for a long time. When convalescing she went to live with her sister-in-law, her [illegible] brother having finally [illegible] he having moved to San Francisco. One day [illegible] asked her sister to telephone [illegible] and she believed [illegible]

MOVIE OPERATOR KILLS SELF BY GAS

[illegible], June 19.—Dominic [illegible], twenty-one, a motion picture operator, committed suicide [illegible] at his home, No. 56 [illegible] street. Gas company employes worked for ninety minutes in an attempt to resuscitate him. He had been ill and out of work for some time. Survivors are his father, two brothers and three sisters.

When
THOMAS A. EDISON
was known as "Little Al"

He accidentally splashed mud on a beautiful Paisley shawl — attempts to clean it failed — 65 years later Lux restored this treasured heirloom to loveliness

"MY Mother was out walking one day with her Mother who wore a beautiful Paisley shawl about her shoulders.

"As they were passing a warehouse, a little boy jumped from a wagon to the sidewalk, immediately in front of them. The plank was loose and a big splash of muddy water literally covered the beautiful Paisley.

"Grandmother attempted to clean it, but such 'soaps' as she had were ineffectual.

"The little boy who soiled the shawl was then known as little Al Edison, now known as Thomas A. Edison. As near as Mother could remember, this incident occurred in 1855. In 1920 the Paisley was given a thorough Lux washing and restored to its original beauty—after 65 years!"

Try this delightful old ginger ale

THERE is health and happiness and good fellowship in it, for it is a real ginger ale—made from real Jamaica ginger.

Famous for years across the border—served in the Houses of Parliament in Ottawa, the Royal Canadian Yacht Club and at smart functions everywhere—"Canada Dry" is indeed a ginger ale with a distinguished and an historic past.

It is so utterly different from the ordinary ginger ale that it might almost be called by another name. No phrase suits it quite so well as this—"The Champagne of Ginger Ales."

It is a delicious treat at dinner—when entertaining [illegible]

WHAT IF YOU ARE HURT OR KILLED IN A TRAFFIC ACCIDENT

It's a Horrible Thought, They Talking of You at Home; and You Falling in Front of the Traffic!

Foresight faces facts; and the facts about Travel Accident Insurance are startling. During the war period of 18 months, when 48,000 Americans were killed overseas, there were killed in the streets of the United States by traffic accidents 91,000 persons. The number has been growing annually. These were killed; HUNDREDS of thousands were INJURED. At times we are all apt to consider ourselves the special "pets of Providence." We are wise if this belief does not keep us in danger until finally we are caught in the wreck of a train or the skidding crash of an automobile.

You may not be able to PREVENT the accident—but you CAN be prepared for it when it comes.

AND REMEMBER!
$10 A WEEK FOR 15 WEEKS

if you are injured in subway, street-car, elevated train, railway train or passenger elevator; by motor-car or horse-drawn vehicle; by falling walls; by lightning, cyclone or tornado; or by fire in a public building.

ROMANTIC HUSBAND

A Sequel to "Ways of a Husband"

By Anne Lisle

PAT continued: "'Tis the fine, strong, brave women who are let to bear the burdens. 'Tis selfish we are—perhaps [illegible] cowardly [illegible] be. But it's the weak sisters we have to stand by, and the women we are after admiring we [illegible] to let march alone."

"Were you [illegible] Jeanie [illegible] in that long winded oration?" [illegible] Virginia, with a touch of the old arrogance that is almost refreshing in view of the fact that it hasn't cropped out for so long.

"It may be that [illegible] our Anne [illegible] cause I am [illegible]," Pat said slowly. "'Tis he [illegible] would always be sore at heart [illegible] was hot after being fair to him [illegible] giving him all the [illegible] there is."

"Why should Anne always be giving Jim another [illegible]?" Jeanie asked [illegible] of the good [illegible] that was once so much part of her.

Then before [illegible] she hurried on to say one or two things of which she would never have been guilty if her mind had been functioning [illegible]. After the instant of [illegible] she was putting into words [illegible] before Ralph I realized that her childishness and amazing lack of poise were so pathetic that I couldn't judge her. I could see why Jim is so patient and tolerant and self-sacrificing where Jeanie is concerned. To topple her [illegible] unbalanced [illegible] over would need only a tiny push. Her own brother would surely never be the one to give that cruel impetus.

"Why should Anne put up with Jim when she can better herself?" Jeanie demanded [illegible] and almost insanely. "Why should she go on standing for his outrageous philandering? She might be excused if she philandered a bit herself. She surely cannot be blamed if she decides to get out of a marriage that is almost a sham and accepts a love as big as—"

"Think [illegible] of yourself, Jeanie," Pat cried [illegible]

DAILY SHORT STORY

MALABAR

By Frank Herbert Sweet

"Do you think Malabar will run?" [illegible]

Sorrowful Eyes.

[illegible] less arms would prove powerless."

But White Egret only looked at him with sorrowful eyes.

"We are Seminoles, Ankona," she rebuked gently. "You know our laws. You would be the last one [illegible] that we become weak and childish. Ankona is young yet, and should be humored. I will let him run the race with me, and will give him one third the distance start as due to his weakness. Now go."

Despairing Glance.

[illegible] during the year had gone unpunished at the time, but now tribal honor brought them here to expiate their misdeeds. On the morrow they would be placed in closely shut tents and almost suffocated with steam made by pouring water on hot stones. [illegible]

Known To All.

Malabar was known to everyone [illegible]. All knew that he was to [illegible] a wife and that [illegible] It would be a notable proof of strength [illegible] He must be punished for that was the law [illegible] did not wish him harm.

[illegible] knew Ankona [illegible] revered [illegible] they all had a tender place for him in their hearts. If he could race with White Egret and win her, they would be glad. But Malabar came first, for White Egret herself had made it so.

Malabar was the first who presented [illegible] punishment. [illegible] the tent flap was raised and he staggered out. For a moment he stood there in the sunlight, [illegible] saw him throw his [illegible] Slowly he [illegible] away from them and strode into the forest to be by himself. [illegible] could hear, "before the White Egret [illegible]

Stared and Gasped.

The spectators stared and gasped. Ankona, his rival, to enter the race and be given one-third the distance, and White Egret, the fleet-footed, to be given one-half. No one could win a race thus handicapped. And yet was it not Malabar?

He swept them with his glance.

"I shall win," he said confidently, "because I will have it so."

Ankona had been watching him with baleful eyes. For an instant he drew back as though to spurn a concession. Then, as he saw White Egret being led forward to her place, he hurried to his own position.

And for a brief space after the signal was given and they were speeding on with straining muscles, he had a wild, insane belief that he would win.

But only for a brief space. Then came that steady, accelerating, implacable rush behind drawing nearer and nearer, then opposite, then passing. When three-fourths of the distance had been covered Malabar was four paces ahead. Suddenly he turned. White Egret was almost within his reach.

"Stop, Ankona!" Malabar called. "Have I not won?"

Ankona did not answer.

"Have I not won?" sternly.

"Yes, Malabar, you have won," Ankona answered, and his voice was full of a great despair.

"It is well. Now you may go [illegible] the girl. Malabar will have no squaw who does not come to him willingly."

He turned proudly from the race and strode back into the forest.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 13.—Thoughts while strolling around New York Afternoon tea crowds. Heavy lashed eyes and shingled necks. Modern Becky Sharps in a modern Vanity Fair. Whatever became of the crokinole craze? Life seems so suave and easy.

After all life is a great adventure and I'm glad I sneaked in on it. Leisured patrons of the arts. Going to the galleries. An abandoned block in the Sixties. Mellow brick walls. And sunken plastered niches. A block away a dance hall teaches the Charleston.

Elsie Janis and, of course, her mother. And why not? The yard wherein Andrew Carnegie used to stroll. A shaggy pup asleep with a rag doll. Wonder if that policeman is rushing after me. No, he wants a match. I'll never get over my fear of police.

Across town to upper Broadway. The cheerful hubbub of children at play. Window pets. Drowsy mothers in camp chairs. Sidewalk hopscotch. Ruddy checked greengrocers who wear aprons. And know their customers by name. Barber shop loafers.

Firemen tilted back in their chairs. Looks like an easy life. But, O, my! In the Winter time. The Yankee Stadium. Where Sunday had his tabernacle. And what has become of Billy? Congestion begins to thin. Store keepers sit out front.

The West Indians playing cricket in Van Cortland Park. And running elevators at night. The cranes in the pond. Artists sketching at their easels. Men sleeping under newspapers and women working cross-word puzzles.

And here I am out in the country. The old Post Road where coaches rumbled and whips cracked. Tankards of ale. Open fire-places. Rounds of beef, hustling post boys and snug inns with deep feather beds. And now back to the chain store existence.

It has been definitely established that Sydney Porter picked up the pseudonym O. Henry in New Orleans when the New York writer was hibernating there to flee to Honduras from the law. One of the drinking places frequented by writers had a drink dispensor named Henry. When he was wanted it was natural to call out "Oh, Henry!" Porter was there one night with a new manuscript. For obvious reasons he did not want to sign his own name. He asked for suggestions and then called out "Oh, Henry!" to stand treat while they thought the matter over. "Why not O. Henry?" said one. And O. Henry it was."

A stray little green Carolina parakeet flew into New York, broke into nearly all the first pages and winged its way out again. It happened to alight in that small mid-town breathing spot—Bryant Park. There are more sparrows there than jobless men. Somehow the parakeet aroused their ire and they swooped en masse. Two policemen went to the rescue and drove the sparrows off. The parakeet flew off with two tiny feathers fluttering away as a signal of Manhattan's inhospitality.

Edna Ferber, Fannie Brice and Bebe Daniels are among the New York celebrities to have their noses bobbed—or straightened. It is now threatening to become a fad like appendicitis operations a few years ago. Two leading men, following Dempsey's example, are now in hospitals for the same purpose. And a young lady to be starred in pictures has it in her contract that she must have a nasal bump removed before she can begin working.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

By Elsie Robinson.

MR. AND MRS. EVANS are much upset over young Wilford's behavior. Wilford is aged eight and has, until the last three months, been the pride of his fond parents.

Wilford always took the highest marks in school. Wilford always made the least fuss at home.

He was the eighteen-karat juvenile model at all times.

Then suddenly a queer change came over him. He had no longer obeyed as meekly or promptly. There was a new look in his eye when mama and papa laid down the law and the look was not one of unmixed admiration.

Moreover, he began to transfer his affections to new objects. Wanted to play at Jimmy Malone's house—a most undesirable shack down the alley.

Developed an intense admiration for Mrs. Malone—a lady singularly lacking in culture. Then capped it all one day by saying: "Say, mother, you look awful funny in that old black dress. There ain't no class to the way you dress, is there?"

Whereupon mama broke into wrath and grief and dad promptly gave young Wilford the spanking of his life. What was the world coming to when children showed disrespect like that for their parents? Insulting his own mother.

All this sounds like 100 per cent. discipline and common sense, doesn't it? It does. And like much of our loudly tooted discipline, it is 99 99-100 per cent. BUNK!

Wilford's query was perfectly normal and correct. It was as natural as manifestation as the cutting of his teeth. It was indeed a sign that he was cutting new teeth mentally.

Children's minds pass through various phases of development, just as children's bodies pass through certain phases of development.

In short, the child is getting ready to live in a crowded dangerous world and his mind is fitting itself for the job of accumulating facts and associations.

He would be as helpless without that accumulation as he would be without lime in his bones or red corpuscles in his blood. He must meddle and investigate, take things to pieces, ask questions, perform all manner of crude experiments if he is to attain strong maturity. HALF THE THINGS FOR WHICH THE GROWING CHILD IS PUNISHED ARE SIMPLY EVIDENCES OF DEVELOPING MENTAL PROCESSES.

THE CHILD WHOSE JUDGMENT IS CRIPPLED BY SENTIMENTAL RESTRICTIONS IS IN AS GREAT DANGER AS THE CHILD WHOSE BODILY FUNCTIONS ARE PARALYZED BY DOPE.

That's why Wilford said: "Say, mother, you look awful funny in that old black dress.

Wilford wasn't being disloyal or unappreciative of his mother. He was simply looking her over as part of a newly perceived world, and telling her his honest opinion.

Moreover, that opinion was probably true. Instead of punishing him for it, and thrusting shut the door of his candor, which should have been kept open at all cost, the mother should have received the comment in the spirit in which it was given and enlisted the boy's interest by asking his advice about her clothes.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

ONE of the biggest cranks in the world is a guy with a new automobile. He invites you for a ride and then makes you take your shoes off so that you won't get the floor dirty.

HE asks you to hold your breath as long as possible so as not to breathe too much on the windows.

ONE motorist made his guests get out of the car to cough.

HE wouldn't take anybody riding who had asthma. It was a sedan and he didn't want them to wheeze inside.

WHILE they were driving along the highway it started to rain and he jumped out and held an umbrella over the machine.

IT was all right if his clothes got soaked, he could send them to the tailor, but he couldn't have the car sponged and pressed.

THE car was very comfortable, but he made the people in the back stand up so that they wouldn't soil the upholstery.

IN order to keep the cushions clean he had the guests put night shirts on over their street clothes.

NOT only that, he got a step ladder and made them climb in through the windows so they wouldn't scratch the doors.

HIS wife had a long haired poodle and he wouldn't let the dog in the automobile unless she shaved him.

EVERY time the dog wanted to go out for a ride he had to have a haircut.

THE poodle spent half of his time in the house and the rest of it in a barber shop.

THE wife finally sold the dog and bought a couple of goldfish because they didn't shed.

A GOLDFISH never gets hair on anybody's car.

IF she wants fish for pets she could save herself a lot of trouble by taking along a can of sardines.

THEY'RE not gold, but they're just as chummy.

WHAT THE THRUSH DOES BESIDES SING

By Foxy Grandpa

LISTEN to that thrush, Foxy Grandpa,' said Bobby. "Doesn't he sing beautifully?"

Before I could answer Bobby, the farmer on whose porch we were sitting said:

"Yes, he sings all right, but he picks at my peaches and pears while they are ripening, too."

Nothing more was said, but the next morning when we were walking about the place, Bobby suddenly stopped by a big rock by the side of a lane which led from the garden to the orchard.

"Look, Foxy Grandpa," said Bobby, "look at those pieces of broken shells! I wonder what they are?"

We examined the shells. I picked up several pieces and tried putting them together.

"I do believe they are snails' shells," I ventured, holding the fragments together and seeing that as they fitted they almost completed what surely did look like the little house of shell which the snail carries on his back and then goes into it he feels so inclined.

"Snails!" exclaimed Bobby.

"Snails," declared Bunny.

"But who would be breaking up their shells like this?" asked the inquisitive Bobby, who always wants to know the why and wherefore of everything.

"If you will hide with me for a little while behind that bush over there," suggested Bunny, pointing to a big lilac bush, "I think I can explain this mystery to you, if you are interested."

Interested! Bobby was behind the bush before you could say "Jack Robinson." And I was behind the bush with him.

We waited. Nothing happened. Bobby got the fidgets, but decided to see the thing through.

Finally something happened. We heard the whirr of wings over our heads and looked up just as a dark streak passed over the lilac bush and then lit on the rock where we had found the shells.

"Thrush," whispered Bobby. "It's the fellow who sings in that tree over there."

"Sh!" warned Bunny, raising his paw and scowling at Bobby.

Then we watched to see what would happen.

It was easy to see that the thrush had something in his bill, but it wasn't easy to see what it was until he started working.

First the beautiful bird lifted his bill up in the air as high as he could. Then he quickly bent his head forward and we could hear that whatever he had in his beak smashed on the rock with a bang.

Again he lifted his bill and "bang" went the object on it again.

This the thrush did several times and then after a while commenced nibbling. He ate quietly for a while and then with a satisfied chirp spread his wings and flew off to the tree.

We were over at the rock the moment he was out of sight.

"He broke the snail's shell!" gasped Bobby.

"Sure he did," said Bunny. "He was hungry."

"Does he live on snails?" asked the boy.

"That he does," declared Bunny, "and if the farmer knew how many he eats up and in that way keeps them from destroying many plants and vegetables in his garden he wouldn't begrudge that thrush a few bites of fruit. That's just the trouble with most human beings," and Bunny shook his head sadly, "they don't know that there is a reason for nearly every one of us here on earth."

Gone and Forgotten

Celluloid collars; fifty-cent dinners; five-cent beers; waist lines; tight trousers; garters; parlors with horse-air sofas; chromos; girls who couldn't go to a dance until they had some-one to chaperon them.

LOYALTY AND KINDNESS

By Lucy Lowell

HERE'S a letter from a person whose hand I'd like to shake. I don't know whether the writer is a man or a woman, for it comes to me from Kirkland, Ore., signed only "E. E. L."

It's about the nine-year-old boy whose arrest was ordered by his father after the youngster had confessed to stealing ninety dollars' worth of jewelry. It was written in answer to my request for opinions by you readers about how right—or wrong—the father's action was.

"Dear Lucy Lowell:

"If that nine-year-old boy had been mine and if he had come to me and confessed to taking the jewelry, I'd have known it was because he was honest and, no honest boy is a thief.

"I'd have taken him on my lap and I think we'd have talked this way.

"'That was a terribly bad thing to do. What under the sun did you take the jewelry for?'

"'Why, they looked so pretty I just thought I'd like to have them.'

"'But you knew they belonged to our neighbor?'

"'Yes. I thought they'd never find out.'

"'Are you sorry for what you did?'

"'Yes, I am. Won't you help me? Please!'

"'Let's see, son. Theft calls for a prison term. One to ten years on the rockpile with a lot of rough men and a hard board for a bed, and maybe nothing much but bread and water to eat.'

"'Gee—!'

"'But I'm going to help you—that is, if you're quite sure you never again will take anything that doesn't belong to you.'

"'No, I wouldn't. Not ever!'

"I do not believe in treating a boy rough. And I certainly would not call on strangers to punish my loved ones.

"This is my answer to the father of the nine-year-old boy who took him to the police station to be arrested.

"E. E. L."

I hope that E. E. L. has a little son. But perhaps E. E. L. is just a father—or mother—to little boys-at-large.

FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

San Francisco, Calif., June 19—San Francisco is bedecked in honor of the great convention of the National Electric Light Association, 5,000 strong. The citizens are offering so much delightful entertainment that it isn't easy to attend to business. Personally, I shall be glad to get back to restful, uneventful New York, where hospitality is less strenuous.

Did you ever hear the story of the grave digger of Kirkintulloch, Scotland? Digging a grave one chilly afternoon, he kept taking nip after nip out of a non-prohibition bottle, until he finally slid in the grave, fell asleep, and didn't waken until the dawn was appearing. He was puzzled for a moment—until he realized that Judgment Day had come. Slowly raising himself in the grave, he looked around to see how many others had been called. Seeing none, he exclaimed: "My, but this is an awful poor turnout for Kirkintulloch."

I told the convention this story when I was called upon to talk as the lone spokesman for consumers and customer owners of utility securities.

Bits from my rambling talk follow:

Some old time public utility men, especially in the traction field, thought only of themselves, and did not hesitate to bribe and corrupt. They were "out for the mon." They came first—and the devil take the public.

Today the great majority of our utility leaders are men of character as well as calibre. Even if they wished, they couldn't run very far amuck, for we have them haltered by our regulatory commissions.

To satisfy all parties utility executives today have to be expert trapeze walkers. They have to walk a tight rope, pulled at one end by stockholders and at the other end by consumers. Not only so, but consumers in larger and larger number are becoming stockholders.

The complex task confronting utility men, therefore, is to satisfy us, as consumers, with low rates; and to satisfy us, as customer owners, with high dividends.

How are they performing this feat? Results talk.

Last year the electric light and power industry attracted from us as investors, fully a thousand million dollars of new capital and in the first five months of this year upwards of half a billion.

CUSTOMERS ARE THIS YEAR BUYING UTILITY SECURITIES AT THE RATE OF A MILLION DOLLARS EVERY BUSINESS DAY.

Some 300,000 consumers last year became stock owners.

SOME WAYS TO BOOM STOCK EXCHANGE

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

At the Algonquin Club some time ago the writer heard Secretary George A. Rich of the Boston Stock Exchange cite the rapid growth of the stock exchange in Chicago. Plans were being made at the time for booming the Boston Stock Exchange. These plans have since been acted upon and business from one cause and another has picked up appreciably.

* * *

Mention of Chicago activities led me to ask Paul B. Skinner of the Chicago office of Hornblower & Weeks (Mr. Skinner is also vice-president of the Chicago Stock Exchange) what was being done in that section to stimulate activities.

* * *

Mr. Skinner tells me: "We have made some progress in the last few years persuading our friends to make a market for securities by listing them on the local exchange. We have recently started a campaign to extend our ticker quotation service to other cities, and we are now trying to get subscribers in New York to this service."

* * *

A short survey of the toy industry in the United States, reveals as the outstanding feature the rapid growth of this comparatively new industry, which has developed mainly in the last twenty years, according to J. M. Calvin, Specialties Division of the Department of Commerce. In 1923, the latest figures available, production totaling $56,966,432 in value was more than ten times that of 1904, an increase of 205 per cent. in that period. Production in 1923 was more than four times that of 1914, an increase of about 307 per cent.

* * *

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Webster and Atlas National Bank, George C. Newcombe was appointed assistant cashier; Melville S. Newcomb, manager of the foreign department, and William E. Westman, auditor.

James J. Phelan, head of the Boston brokerage house of Hornblower & Weeks, does not accept the gloomy view on employment issued by a bureau in Boston this week; and, by the way, I find no one else who does. Mr. Phelan sees "no good reason why any man should be without a job in the United States, no matter what his age is, so long as he is able to work."

* * *

Mr. Phelan says: "As a result of the war and restricted immigration it is estimated that there are 2,000,000 less laborers in the United States today than would have been here if the war and restricted immigration had not taken place. We used to get about a million laborers from Europe every year before the war and we were able to absorb them pretty thoroughly without any ill effects to the American workingman. Last year we received only 147,000 immigrant laborers."

John R. Macomber, president of Harris, Forbes & Co., was today receiving congratulations as a result of winning his first big metropolitan race Thursday when Golden Cup, a four-year-old bay filly, won the Mardin Steeplechase at Aqueduct. Mr. Macomber stables his thoroughbreds at Framingham.

Mr. Macomber has recently acquired several high-class jumpers. Golden Cup was bred in France and is regarded as one of the most promising prospects in this country. Mr. Macomber is on the outlook for several more good thoroughbreds. He made a special trip to Lexington, Ky., on May 12 to attend the auction sale of the late August Belmont's horses.

La Follette Bravest Fighter for People Against Privilege

"La Follette is dead!"

The words leaped from millions of lips yesterday as the greatest Progressive leader in American politics gave up his long, long fight.

He was the most compelling figure in our public life and his bitter lifelong battle with those who regard government as the peculiar instrument of Privilege will long stand forth as the gift of a brave, unbending character, the gift of a brilliant, constructive, never-resting brain.

Always he fought the bosses; always he fought to bring his party back to what it was when Lincoln's sense of justice was its creed.

The first step he took he met the enemies of individual independence, the enemies of popular government, the enemies of majority rule—and he whipped them.

He was little more than a boy then. He wanted to be District Attorney for Dane County, Wisconsin, and the local boss told him he had made other arrangements.

La Follette replied that he had understood that the people nominated the District Attorney and when the boss dismissed him with a sneer, La Follette went out among the people, won the nomination, whipped the bosses!

And then he went to Congress when he was thirty—and there he was industrious and independent.

They called him an "insurgent." That is what the National Board of Directors of both old parties call a man who dusts off the Declaration of Independence and believes that his duty is to those who sent him—and to his own conscience.

In the House of Representatives, young La Follette stopped timber steals and the robbery of Indians and various other time-honored larcenies by those who had won the right to pillage by large campaign contributions.

He actually believed that Uncle Sam should have the benefit of the Ten Commandments, the same as a farmer or a business man—and this was radical—this idea that it was wrong to rob the government!

The Senator from his own State, the leader of his party in Wisconsin, started to upbraid La Follette for his independence, whereupon La Follette commanded him to leave the House of Representatives or he would have the Sergeant-at-Arms eject him!

After three terms in the House, La Follette was defeated when Wisconsin went Democratic for local reasons.

A little while and La Follette was in State politics, a candidate for Governor, and against him all the savagery of capitalistic control of politics was unleashed.

Corporation-owned leaders of both old parties joined to crush him and every organ of publicity was united to bury him beneath a mountain of misrepresentation and abuse.

He must be destroyed utterly, for he aimed the axe at the tree of bi-partisan corruption. He defied the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad and the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad, the two acknowledged absolute autocrats of Wisconsin.

It was a long, bruising fight; it was a pathetic fight—the fight of this unconquerable will, this tongue of lashing eloquence, this man of physical frailty, bidding his weak body bear him on and on to victory over staggering and unscrupulous odds.

They beat him at first, these solid phalanxes of capitalism, and when they could no longer beat him, they robbed him; they stole from him the gubernatorial nomination the people gave him.

But there came a time when his majority was so great his enemies did not dare to steal it any more.

Then he started his real life-work; then he started that constructive struggle which finally made Wisconsin "the best governed State in the Union."

He regulated railroad rates and made the railroads stop rebating; he set the example for the nation. He made the railroads stop buying big men with money and little men with passes; he inaugurated tax reforms and drove thieves out of public life. He was for the primary law and put it upon the books; he was for economy in government; he made the University of Wisconsin the constructive helper of the people of the Commonwealth, not the select finishing factory for the fortunate.

And he did all this over the dead body of corruption and reaction!

And then at last he went to Washington as a Senator and from the day he entered that great body until the day he died, his thoughts, his energies, his sympathies, his daytime battles and his midnight lamp—all these were devoted to the only thing in life worth while—the battle for what you believe!

He was the first to uncover the rotten oil scandals—and he held up the dripping vestments of that dirty scandal and made the nation look at them.

It were too much to recount the things he stood for, many, many of which have since become the nation's laws by the votes of those who first denounced them.

Perhaps the greatest example of his courage came when we went to war with Germany.

Almost alone he stood, the awful lightning of a great nation, arming for war, sending its blinding wrath upon him.

No matter what you think of his position, he stood there—he stood in a No Man's Land—as desolate as any that ever marked the chasm of hate between contending hosts.

And now it is all over; the great fighter is no more; the friend of the lowly, of labor, of little children in factories, of women in sweat-shops, of farmers, wronged by speculation and by profiteers—the friend of the plain people of America has passed beyond the reach of praise—even beyond the reach of the most pitiless malice that privilege has unleashed in modern times.

The United States is more just, more progressive because Robert Marion La Follette lived in it!

—From the New York American.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

MOTHER your husband, if you must—but don't SMOTHER him.

* * *

Before marriage a girl "mothers" a man by making him comfortable, catering to his moods, sympathizing with him, admiring his talents, and offering to keep his neckties pressed.

Helen Rowland

After marriage she "smothers" him by censoring his food, opening his letters, apologizing for his pet habits, keeping tabs on his time and selecting his neckties.

* * *

It is SO different! As different as Saturday night and Monday morning.

* * *

Far more marital love is killed by suffocation than ever died from starvation!

Prying, picking, arguing and following him around with advice, a questionnaire and a hot water bottle never made any man grateful for a woman's devotion. Either it hardens him so that he doesn't notice that she is there, or it tortures him until he would cheerfully turn and murder her if he did not fear publicity.

* * *

He may "give in" to you," but every time you win a little point over him you lose a lot of his love.

* * *

Many a husband spends his whole life as a "prisoner at the bar" trying to "explain himself."

* * *

It takes all the joy out of everything for a man to feel that every time he changes his cuff-links, his diet, his meal hours or his opinion, he will have to invent a steel-riveted, waterproof alibi to "explain" it.

* * *

If he spends most of his spare time with you, it is really none of your business what he is doing the rest of the day. And to have to give an itemized account of his daily acts makes him love you just like a detective.

* * *

Many a girl has made the fatal mistake of beginning the "smothering" before the wedding and lost the chance at a perfectly good husband by making a man "explain" every time he happened to be twenty minutes late.

* * *

After all, if a man is old enough for you to lead him to the altar, he is old enough to know when to wear his rubbers and when to take his cough medicine.

* * *

How to keep his hair smooth—and when to change his collar.

* * *

Where to lay his cigar stubs—and at what temperature to take his shower.

* * *

What to eat—and when to stop eating.

* * *

It is sweet and unselfish for a woman, of course, to want to oversee a man's whole life. But, after all, a man marries in order to get a cheer leader, not an overseer!

Copyright, 1925, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

There is not one grain in the universe to be spared, nor so much as any one particle of it that mankind may not be the better or the worse for, according as 'tis applied.

Antithesis may be the blossom of wit, but it will never arrive at maturity unless sound sense be the trunk and truth the root.

Unable to Work

Helping Hand Editor:

I was deserted three years ago and left with two children, two and five. I have managed to feed the children when I was able to work, but recently suffered a nervous relapse and am unable to continue my work. Would appreciate assistance.

MRS. A. Z.

Little Girl's Plea

Helping Hand Editor:

Won't you please help us? If I were big enough to work I would be so happy, but I am 14 years old and need dresses and Summer coat and shoes, size 6. My little brother, who is an invalid, would like a cart so I can take him to ride. I wish my mother could get some shoes, size 5½, and a coat and dress for Summer, size 40. My little brother takes size 9 suit and 12 shoes; also little girl 2, needs clothing and shoes, size 4. I know I am asking a great deal, but we are so poor and mamma owes money. I hope some day I can help instead of asking for it. Mamma can make over anything? for me. HELEN.

Wants Infants' Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

I have three boys, ages 5 and 1 years, and baby 17 months old. I expect the stork soon again and would appreciate some infants' clothing and a carriage. My husband is a World War veteran and his health is very poor, so he is unable to work much. I can make over such things as dresses, coats, suits or underwear. MRS. G. G.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

OLD EARTH'S a garden-plot today while south winds croon and all the lark's blithe roundelay is praise of June. Forgotten now the icy blast of Winter's reign, today all chill and shade are past, all grief and pain. Love's ancient symbols re-appear: the dove, the rose, and feathered songsters, far and near life's charms disclose. The soul has joyous seasons, too; delight's glad days when leaving shadowed paths and rue, it seeks bright ways. For it is but a wanderer that needs must go down flower-sweet ways where gay wings whirr, down fields in snow. But for today the darker ways are left behind; around Earth's rose-strewn garden plays the song-sweet wind. Today life's harp of countless strings sounds all in tune and through all Nature gladness sings, in praise of June.

THE GOLD STANDARD AND HONESTY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE reason why the best judgment of the world adheres to the gold standard is that it is honest.

That is, there is enough in the bank to pay for all its obligations if they do not all come at the same time. There is a reasonable amount of gold kept in reserve.

Besides this anybody is willing to take gold. This may be irrational, but it remains true. No matter what a person's beliefs he will take gold for his debt.

Mr. George W. Hinman recently pointed out the effect of the adoption or the non-adoption that the gold standard had on various countries.

Communists talk about capitalism and the conspiracy of money, and all that sort of thing, but the fact remains that capitalistic countries, at the head of which are reckoned America and Great Britain, are the most prosperous countries.

Business may be all wrong, but at present according to the way it is carried on business thrives in those countries which have adopted the gold standard.

Misery thrives in those countries which have been affected more or less with socialism, especially Russia.

Russia puts up barriers to keep the poor at home, and the United States puts up barriers to keep the poor out.

As a matter of fact a country reverts to the gold standard simply because it prefers honest and straightforward means of doing business and is not bitten by the bug of inflation.

The departure from the gold standard in Germany and Austria has ruined millions.

A man is not safe in laying up money or in investing money in business unless he knows that his money will be worth about as much at some future time as it is now.

Inflation of money may bring a fictitious prosperity to the laborers, as they are nominally paid more for their work, but the prosperity is entirely fictitious, for everything they buy costs more.

As long as misery is rampant in the communistic countries and prosperity in those of the gold standard, people will continue to believe that there is more in choosing gold as a basis for a country than mere theory.

WHEN WINTER WILL CENTER IN JULY

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"Curiosity and ignorance of facts lead me to ask what is meant by the 'precession of the equinoxes,' which you mention in writing of the variation of the length of days and nights in conjunction with the change of seasons. The Equinoxes, you say, require about 26,000 years to complete one revolution. Does that mean that in 13,000 years (half a revolution) we will have Winter in June, July and August, and Summer in the months that Winter now visits us in?

I HAVE before shown how the axis of the earth turns round like the peg of a spinning top. The top spins with blinding rapidity as it rests on the point of its peg, but the peg itself, carrying the body of the top, swings round much more slowly in a relatively large circle.

In like manner the earth whirls with relative swiftness on its axis of rotation, but that axis itself, like the peg of the top, turns slowly in comparison, so that while one rotation of the earth on the axis is effected every twenty-four hours, it takes more than a thousand times twenty-four years for the axis to swing around its circle of revolution.

Play a little with a top and you will quickly perceive the whole principle underlying the precession of the equinoxes.

Gravitation is the force behind both of these phenomena: in the case of the top gravitation pulls down upon the leaning body, but because of its spin, the top turns around with its peg instead of falling; in the case of the earth, the sun and the moon pull upon the swollen equator of the globe to bring it parallel to the ecliptic, but the response is only a turning around of the axis, so that the direction in which its poles point swings in a circle.

This circle, in the northern hemisphere, passes very close to the star that we call Polaris, or the "North Star," and at the present time that star is almost exactly at the point in the circle toward which the North Pole of the earth's axis is directed.

That is why it is the "pole star," an honor that it temporarily enjoys because of its accidental position so near the circumference of the percessional circle.

That circle is about 47 degrees in diameter (double the inclination of the earth's axis), and along its course lie a number of other stars that either have been in the past or will be in the future, "north pole stars," although none of them is as close to the circle as Polaris.

The circle runs around between the "handle" of the "Great Dipper," and the bowl of the "Little Dipper," and its centre, called the North Pole of the ecliptic, is situated in the constellation Draco, in the direction of the constellation Hercules.

About 4,600 years ago the star Alpha Draconis served as the North Pole star, and was thus regarded by the builders of the Great Pyramid, who left in that mighty mass of masonry a long tubular passage pointing toward the place where Alpha Draconis could be seen circling around the pole of the heavens. In about 12,000 years to come the pole will point within a few degrees to the brilliant star Vega in the constellation Lyra.

Now, it is evident that when the pole points toward the opposite side of the precessional circle from that toward which it now points, the position of the northern hemisphere of the earth will be reversed with regard to the sun; in this way, viz. that whereas the north pole of the earth now leans 23½ degrees sunward in the month of June, it will then have the same inclination sunward in the month of December.

So our Winter, now centering in January, will then center in July. Along with this will come a change in the relative length of Summer and Winter, and in the amount of heat received by our hemisphere during those seasons, for at present we have our Winter when the earth is nearest the sun; but then Winter will occur, for us, when the earth is farthest from the sun.

So far as the precession of the equinoxes is concerned the complete reversal would require 13,000 years, but there is another phenomenon, viz. a shifting round of the position of the perihelion (nearest the sun) point of the earth's orbit, called the motion of the apsides, whose effects when combined with those of the precession, will bring about the complete reversal of the seasons above described in about 10,500 years from now.

ONCE-OVERS

IF YOUR JOB SEEMS TOO HARD FOR YOU INCREASE YOUR ABILITY. DON'T BE A QUITTER

So you are one of those fellows who has "a job too big for you." Sometimes you lose confidence in your ability to fill the place. You are tempted to go to your employer and tell him you "can't." Don't do it.

All your life you have tried to get through with as little study and effort as possible, refusing to do extra work to prepare you better to perform your regular job.

In your present place you realize you made a mistake not to prepare yourself better for your job.

And in line with your usual train of thought you are about to give up rather than put yourself through a severe course of study and hard work.

If you do not give satisfaction in your present job it may be a long time before you secure another responsible place.

Why not talk with men in similar places and try to get some new angles and ideas in regard to your position.

Instead of spending your spare time in pleasure why not use some of it in getting down to brass tacks in learning new things.

New things related to your job are what you need—don't be a quitter.
